SURVIVOR REPORTS

400 Cultists Dead In Mass Suicide Rite

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — Attorney Mark Lane said today a band of American religious fanatics who massacred a California congressmen and four members of his party apparently used a tub of poison in a mass suicide ceremony that left 400 of them dead. Six hundred others were missing.

Lane told a news conference he counted 85 bursts of semi-automatic weapons fire when the Peoples Temple sect gathered at an open air auditorium of its commune at the Guyanese jungle town of Jonestown, presumably for a mass suicide rite.

The American lawyer said he had heard that the doctor and nurse of the commune carried a tub of poison to the auditorium prior to the mass suicide.

Lane said the Rev. Jim Jones, a former San Francisco city offficial who heads the religious comunity, had sent him and fellow attorney Charles Garry away from the scene.

"Jones had sent me (and Garry) away to the East House," said Lane. We could hear him speak of the dignity of death, the beauty of dying. Jones shouted 'mother, mother, mother, mother!' Then there was the first burst of shooting."

Lane said he and Garry fled into the bush near the commune settlement after the massacre Sunday night. He said they heard lots of gunfire and people screaming, including children, fleeing through the jungle.

The attorney told newsmen at an impromptu poolside hotel news conference that in a statement to Guyanese police he suggested that Jones may have escaped from the commune. The commune was known to possess a launch.

Earlier, Guyana Minister of Information Shirley Field-Ridley, who first reported the mass suicide, said Guyanese troops today captured the headquarters of the Peoples Temple in Jonestown and found that some of the victims apparently were murdered.

She said some 400 of the commune members had been found dead and authorities estimated 600 others were missiing.

The bizarre case blazed into violence late Saturday when an ambush by members of the sect at a jungle airport killed Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four other Americans when Ryan was leaving with 20 members of the sect after investigating reports that many Americans were being held against their will.

Killed with him were NBC television reporter Don Harris, 42; NBC cameraman Robert Brown, 36, both of Los Angeles, San Francisco Examiner photographer Gregory Robinson, 27, and Patricia Park, 18, an American settler.

Lane, who had accompanied the investigating party to the jungle commune said that after Ryan and his group left for the airport, he and Garry attempted to calm an atmosphere of panic that swept through the commune.

He recalled that months earlier Jones had been accused of suggesting a mass suicide. Just before the suicide ceremony, Lane said, he and Garry encountered two armed black members of the commune en route to the auditorium where others had assembled.

"They said to us with smiles on their face, 'We are all going to die.' They were relaxed and happy and I wondered if they were not doped."

Lane said he challenged the word 'we'. I said to the two armed men, 'at least Garry and I'll be able to tell the story.' They hugged us and said goodbye. We asked how to walk out of the place. 'Over the hill and through the brush and you'll find a road,' they said.".

Shortly after that they heard the shooting.

Lane said he and Garry spent most of Sunday cutting into strips some white boxer shorts he had in his overnight bag and using them to mark trails in various directions as they wandered through the area where they were lost.

After several hours they relocated the road. They proceeded down the road and were finally picked up by a Guyanese defence force

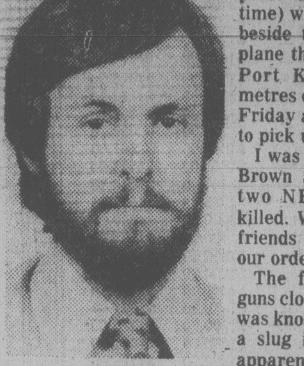
'I'll Never Forget That Sight'

Here is the first-person account of San Francisco Chronicle reporter RON JAVERS, wounded Saturday in the gunfire that killed Representative Leo Ryan and four others on a remote airstrip in Guyana. Javers, en route to Washington for medical attention, dictated the story to his city desk.

SAN JUAN (AP) — Jonestown is every evil thing that everybody thought — and worse.

We knew that before the shooting started.



JAVERS

The slaughter began at 4:20 p.m. Saturday (Guyana time) while we were standing beside the twin-engined airplane that had brought us to Port Kaituma, 11.2 kilometres outside Jonestown, on Friday and that had returned to pick us up.

I was waiting between Bob Brown and Don Harris, the two NBC men who were killed. We had become close friends during the course of our ordeal.

The firing erupted from guns close by. I was hit first. I was knocked to the ground by a slug in the left shoulder, apparently from a .38-calibre weapon.

I crawled behind the right wheel of the plane.

Bob Brown stayed on his feet and kept filming what was happening, even as the attackers advanced on him with their guns.

He was incredibly tenacious.

While I was trying to decide whether to stay where I was or risk the 100-yard-dash across the close-cropped grass field to the jungle, I saw Brown go down.

I'll never forget that sight as long as I live.

I ran, and then I dived head-first into the brush.

I got up and scrambled as far into the swamp as I could. I was about 150 yards from the airstrip and up to my waist in water.

I pushed through the rain forest, walking parallel to the runway, trying to figure out what had happened.

I couldn't see much. I had lost both pairs of glasses I had with me.

But there was silence. Apparently the party of attackers which must have included four, five or six men with guns, had fled.

I was far down the field by the time I returned to the airstrip.

Then, like the rest of the survivors, I returned to the crippled plane.

Leo Ryan was on his back in a blue cord suit, lying in the mud in front of the right wheel of the aircraft.

There were four Guyanese soldiers at the far end of the field.

They told us they had not been able to shoot at the attackers during the assault because they were afraid they would kill still more people.

The only policeman at the field, carrying a single-shell shotgun, had been disarmed the moment the men from the People's Temple began firing from their truck and trailer while we were getting ready to board the two planes: our own craft and the smaller one that was set to carry away the fugitives from Jonestown.

We took our most seriously wounded to the soldiers' tent and then we retired into Port Kaituma, the settlement next to the airstrip and went into a small cafe.

When we first reached Jonestown, on Friday night, the atmosphere was lively and cordial. We found ourselves getting a real Cook's Tour, with everything arranged for us. There was great rock music from the Jonestown band and entertainment during dinner.

And while we tried, mainly at first, to get away from the organized fun, we were told how happy everyone was.

But before we left for an evening's drive through deep mud to Port Kaituma, a young man slipped Don Harris of NBC a message written on a child's slate, saying: "Please help me get out of Jonestown."

It had four signatures.

Back in Port Kaituma, where the entire group of us spent Friday night in a tin-roofed disco — a small beer parlor with a phonograph and a few records — local Guyanese began telling us horror stories.

West Communities Firmly No on Unity

See election stories and tables on pages 7, 11 and 13.

A solid no-vote on incorporation in the Western Community, a somewhat confusing endorsment of industrial development in Saanich and a fourth-time-lucky approval of sewers in View Royal were three highlights of Saturday's municipal elections.

The emphatic rejection of municipal status surprised many who had been expecting it would be approved by Metchosin voters and at least narrowly defeated in Colwood-Langford and View Royal.

But the figures showed clearly that residents in the areas preferred the devil they know — in the form of the much-criticized Capital Region Board — to the uncertain future of incorporation.

The results of the three referendums: Colwood-Langford, yes 1,123; no 2,271. Metchosin, yes 288; no 476. View Royal, yes 281; no 696.

Some western-area politicians apparently feel the whole issue is now dead and buried, but others believe enforced incorporation at the dictates of the municipal affairs ministry is inevitable in the future.

Despite voting no to their own municipality, View Royal residents responded more than two to one in favor of a sewer referendum.

By only a slightly smaller margin, Saanich residents indicated they support the need for industrial development in the municipality.

But their replies to two other questions on the referendum ballot provided no helpful clues or consensus for elected officials who had been hoping that the result might lead them out of the morass of controversy.

Although residents rejected an industrial park developed under municipal land-banking in the Interurban area, and endorsed the Royal Oak site for industry, the vote margin was only a little over 1,000 in each case.

The Saanich municipal election saw pro-neighborhood aldermen Mary Casilio and John Mika re-elected, along with newcomer Irene Block and former veteran alderman Sandy Noel. Incumbent Ian Cass trailed in fifth place, more than 300 votes behind Noel.

Saturday was generally a successful day for incumbents in Greater Victoria, but a notable exception was the Greater Victoria school board election in which voters dumped trustees Peter Dorazio and Bud Smith in favor of newcomers Winfield Mott and Dr. Martin Levin.

The result gives a new slant to the board's philosophy, weakening the "fiscal responsibility" group and strengthening the element identified with emphasis on educational responsibility.

Esquimalt voters expressed satisfaction with the status quo in re-electing all three incumbents, while in Oak Bay incumbents Doug Watts and Shirley Dowell were voted back in office along with Norm Pimlott, a former eight-year council veteran.

In the North Saanich race for three council seats, incumbent Lawrence Fast was defeated by Owen Philp, a farmer who has already announced that he has his eyes fixed on the mayor's chair in 1979.

Winter . . .and With Vengeance

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A savage gale gusting to 93 km/h lashed southern Vancouver Island over the weekend, knocking down trees, damaging homes and knocking out power lines.

The weather office said the wind will gradually die down, bringing very cold, dry weather until Wednesday — when snow is a strong possibility.

No injuries were reported on the weekend but there were scares aplenty.

— Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Rhodes of 1744 Jefferson fled their house Saturday night when a 40-foot pine tree came down on the roof.

— A tall tree was blown down at noon Sunday, just missing a four-man B.C. Hydro crew trying to repair storm damage.

— A tree caused minor damage to a house at 4407 Shelbourne.

— An apartment block, also at Sooke, was hit a glancing blow when a tree was blown down.

— Most areas of the Saanich Peninsula were without power or had flickering lights for at least part of the weekend with Sidney and Sooke being the hardest hit.

The storm began at 8 a.m. Saturday just as municipal voting began and reached its peak at 10

For the second successive year it will be Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes clashing in the Canadian Football League final for the Grey Cup next Sunday at Toronto and the Esks will be trying to avenge the 46-1 humiliation they suffered last year. Eskimos, utilizing what they called their "pride and poise" came from behind to defeat the Calgary Stampeders 26-13 Saturday in the Western final on a frozen Edmonton field. The Alouettes, losers of three out of four games to Ottawa this season, proved too tough defensively for the Rough Riders Sunday in posting a 21-16 Eastern victory. Page 16.

The prospects of again losing the services of high-scoring Geordie Robertson erased some of the sparkle from a winning Western Hockey League weekend for Victoria Cougars, who clipped Seattle Breakers 2-1 at home Saturday and scored a 3-2 victory Sunday in New Westminster. Page 16.

It also was a winning weekend for Victoria basketball teams. University of Victoria's Vikettes and Vikings both completed Canada West University Athletic Association sweeps over Saskatchewan's squads (Page 18) while DataTech clipped Gary Taylors twice in senior "A" men's competition at Vancouver. Begin Rejects Egypt Offer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says he will recommend that his cabinet reject Egypt's demand for a timetable for solving the Palestinian problem but will ask it to reaffirm its willingness to sign a peace treaty with Egypt.

The cabinet adjourned its regular weekly meeting Sunday without taking a decision on the Egyptian demand. It was to reconvene Tuesday to continue discussions of the stalled Egyptian-Israeli negotiations in Washington.

The Sunday meeting came on the anniversary of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem last year, which opened the way to the current negotiations. Palestinian guerrillas, who have been sharply critical of Sadat's solo peace drive, marked the date with a barrage of bombs aimed at Israeli targets.

One bomb exploded in a crowded bus travelling through the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, killing four persons and wounding 37. Canadians, Belgians, Swedes and Britons were among the casualties.

A second bomb injured two Israelis in the Tel Aviv suburb of Jaffa. A third, found at a busy Jerusalem intersection, was disarmed.

I QUIT! WEEK 7

View Challenge as Spoiled Child

By DAVID COTTER

The mind is such a fascinating and subtle instrument, equally content to serve or to turn on its master.

I recall the pride I felt, the last time around, in meeting its old tricks. I remember drifting toward cigarette machines and unthinkingly jiggling the change in my pockets. I remember standing at parties and wanting to ask for a puff, to show off. I remember thinking that it was senseless to quit: my nerves were bad, I often felt tired, my temper was short, I'd gained a few pounds, I wasn't the life of the party. I remember feeling depressed because I wasn't seeing the money that I was supposed to be saving. I remember the killer, of course, the feeling that quitting just wasn't "me". I even remember feeling that smoking was my destiny and that it was wrong to stop.

I met them all and more the last time around, I even learned to regard them with a certain amount of affectionate humor. The main thing will always be this: remember to remember. Review your list and add to it the following facts:

● According to Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling, if you smoke 20 cigarettes a day and are 50 years old, you are equal in health to a 58-year-old non-smoker; 40 cigarettes, equal to 66 years, 60 cigarettes, 74 years of age.

● Put end to end, all the cigarettes consumed in one year in the U.S. and Canada would reach from New York to London over 11,680 times — more than 35 million miles.

● Vision declines noticeably for about 20 minutes after a cigarette has been smoked.

● Heavy smokers have a lower intake of nearly every vitamin, mineral and amino acid than non-smokers.

In the Book of Five Rings, a classic study of strategy, the Japanese samurai was advised how to treat the enemy. He was constantly to project the sense of superior rank and to strive for height. In fact, the bulk of this amazing little book is devoted to the attitudes and feelings a winner must develop.

Let's think along those lines. If you treat withdrawal as an heroic struggle, then you can bank on suffering heroically. If you treat the challenge as awesome, expect it to become so. But, if you treat it as a rather persistent and spoiled child whose crying goes on through the night, you've got the upper hand.

The crying may keep you up for a while but eventually the little blackmailer will realize that his iron lungs don't control you.

A FOUL DEAL ON TURKEYS

OTTAWA (CP) — A foul deed is being done with fowl in anticipation of Christmas, says Ken Crawford, chairman of the Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency.

Wholesalers, the middlemen who buy turkeys from farmers to sell to the supermarkets, are holding about 50 million pounds of the birds in cold storage to try to force up prices shoppers will pay for their Christmas turkeys, Crawford said in an interview.

He said turkey growers "want to make the public aware that there's plenty of turkey available for Christmas and there's no need to pay high prices."

Grocery stores are charging between $1.18 and $1.43 a pound for turkeys when the highest shoppers should pay is between $1.10 and $1.20 a pound, Crawford said.

The wholesalers are only paying farmers an average of 50 cents a pound for the turkeys. Yet they bill supermarkets between $1.04 a pound and $1.10 a pound and that for limited quantities.

The Amazing Saga of Rev. Jim Jones

By LARRY KRAMER
Washington Post

The saga of Rev. Jim Jones and his Peoples Temple is a mysterious tale of power and influence — both political and personal.

It involves the meteoric rise of an Indiana farmboy to a position of influence matched by few other citizens in the history of San Francisco.

Jones and the congregation of his self-styled cult-like church first opened doors as The Christian Assembly of God Church in the 1950s in Indianapolis, but moved to the Northern California community of Ukiah about 15 years ago.

Jones appealed to people without a purpose in life. He built a rag-tag band of drifters, old and young, into a powerful church that drew 5,000 people to Sunday services and evening speeches.

Although Jones is white, a majority of his followers are black. Many were ex-convicts or down-and-outers with nowhere else to go, who latched on to the flamboyant Jones.

Jones had a penchant for flashy ties and dark glasses. He was generally soft-spoken except when he addressed crowds with an evangelical flair that often brought them to their feet.

Promoted as a movement striving to deal with man-made problems through the use of moral force and attempting to build a "good society," the Peoples Temple has been embroiled in controversy.

Jones, after moving the church's headquarters to San Francisco in 1970, became a powerful force in local politics. He has been visited at his church by such political luminaries as Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., San Francisco mayor George Moscone, Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley and others. Moscone made him the head of San Francisco's housing authority, a post from which Jones had to resign under pressure.

Despite his political contacts, Jones' world began to crumble in August 1977, when the first news accounts of alleged horrors within the church were published by New West Magazine reporters Marshall Kilduff and Phil Tracy.

Their story quoted 10 former church members who detailed beatings, slave-like working conditions, extortion and death threats to those who attempted to leave the church or discredit it in any way.

The published accounts led to a public outcry in San Francisco, causing Jones, a 46-year-old father of seven, to leave the United States for a 27,000-acre settlement in Guyana where he said he had begun to establish an agricultural retreat "in order to assist the Guyana government, in a small measure, to feed, clothe, and house its people and at the same time to further the human service goals that have characterized the Peoples Temple for many years."

The Jonestown settlement formed a close relationship with the government of Guyanese Prime Minister Forbes Burnham, which saw it as a major element in Guyana's drive for national self-reliance and enhanced food production.

Four years ago the government granted Jones 27,000 acres of land near the Venezuelan border to set up his agricultural mission.

But the Peoples Temple also ran into trouble from the established churches in Guyana and from the political opposition.

The Roman Catholic Church, initially friendly, turned hostile after Jones staged a faith-healing spectacle in which he claimed the lame were made to walk and cancerous growths were removed from the sick.

Back in the U.S. hundreds of threats were made against reporters and publications that carried stories of church actions.

EVIL STORIES CONFIRMED

They told us about one man who had escaped from the colony last summer, only to be captured by guards from Jonestown and then beaten.

When we returned the following morning to Jonestown, we were not surprised to see Jim Jones's carefully stage-managed production start to crack.

Edith Parker, one of the 1,200 followers trapped in Jonestown, approached Congressman Ryan and said she wanted to leave with him.

The list grew.

About an hour before it was time for us to leave Jonestown, nine people said they wanted to go.

Then 12.

Finally, about 20 got up their courage to defy Jones.

There were too many of us for one truckload. The reporters and cameramen were told we would go out in the first batch, but Congressman Ryan would wait to leave in the second.

We were relieved to be going.

Jones agreed that the 20 people who wanted to could leave with us. He even said he thought they might be "better off" somewhere else if they no longer wanted to stay in Jonestown.

Suddenly, there was a commotion in the central building that serves as the colony's meeting place — a large structure with a tin roof and packed dirt floor.

A cheer rang through the crowd.

Then, a young white man made a direct lunge at Ryan with a knife.

The blade was at Ryan's throat when Mark Lane and Charles Garry, Jones's lawyers and long-time supporters, grabbed the weapon.

The attacker was cut before he could be disarmed.

And Ryan's shirt was drenched with the attacker's blood.

Ryan ran to the truck at that point and we lumbered off through the mud to the airstrip.

Shaken by what he thought was his successful narrow escape, Ryan told us as we reached the airstrip: "I wouldn't be alive if it was not for Mark Lane."

Ryan lived only a few minutes longer.

After the violence of the attack at the airstrip, we still had to wait for rescue.

We spent the night listening to the stories the 12 former residents of Jonestown had to tell.

They corroborated every evil story about the place that we had heard.

They told us how Jim Jones had led the entire colony into making a maniacal suicide pact with him.

They talk about stores of weapons in the so-called peaceful jungle mission.

Daybreak — which we never expected to see, finally came.

At 8:30 a.m., the first batch of Guyanese troops arrived at Port Kaituma.

They had flown to a landing field at Mathews Ridge. about 48 kilometres away, and were transported by truck about halfway from the ridge to where we were waiting.

While 80 soldiers marched to Jonestown to make sure no more marauders could sweep out from the deadly settlement, rescue flights arrived to take out the survivors.

400 Dead, 600 Missing

Mrs. Field-Ridley, told a news conference earlier that some of the victims "showed signs of violence, including presumed gunshot wounds, which were not consistent with suicide." She said some of the victims showed no signs of violence and were presumed to have been poison victims.

Jones, 46, variously called himself the "prophet of God" and "father" and preached a flamboyant mixture of old-time faith healing, racial intergration and socialism.

Mrs. Field-Ridley said, "some of the bodies were found in homes, some were found in clearings in the forests, but no live persons were found...The troops are searching for them. We estimate some 600 persons may be missing."

She said it was not immediately known if they had fled into the jungle surrounding the Peoples Temple 150 miles west of Georgetown near the Venezuelan border or if they were dead.

Mrs. Field-Ridley said troops had been unable to locate Jones, a former San Francisco Housing Authority director but refugees said he had forced his followers — known as "a bunch of crazies" — to make a suicide pact with him and predicted all 1,200 members of the sect would die.

Mrs. Kathy Hunter, a freelance writer from Ukiah, Calif., who is familiar with the Peoples Temple sect, said a Guyanese parliament member had told her in a telephone conversation that Jones had committed suicide — a fate many cultists had predicted for the bizarre figure:

Lane and Garry accompanied Ryan on the investigative trip as attorneys for the religious leader. Lane wrote Ryan an unfriendly letter Nov. 6 threatening "dire consequences" if the American government continued to harass the Peoples Temple, Ryan's administrative assistant Joe Holsinger said in Washington.

A short time before the massacre on the airstrip, Ryan had escaped a knife attack by a young cultist in the Jonestown compound. The congressman, whose shirt was drenched with his assailant's blood, credited Lane with saving his life at that time.

Mrs. Field-Ridley said one suspect, Larry Layton, 32, an American member of the sect, had been arrested but no charges had yet been filed. Police reported nine other suspects had been arrested in connection with the murder of the California congressman.

MLA Raps BC Rail Findings

The negative findings of the Royal Commission that spent more than a year studying the financially troubled government-owned B.C. Railway are totally unacceptable, North Peace River MLA Ed Smith said today.

Smith said he "rejects entirely the conclusions that have been drawn by the commission.

"They're incompatible with every plan that has ever been drawn for the northern part of the province."

But the findings weren't surprising to Smith whose riding includes Fort Nelson.

An earlier interim report of the Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie commission recommended the 400 km link to Fort Nelson be abandoned.

"The commission took a very negative position from day one," said Smith.

It was only after several months delay Premier Bill Bennett last spring assured the town of Fort Nelson the line would be kept open.

"They (the three commissioners) seem to ignore the fact that the railroad is a very important development tool for the north," Smith said from his Fort St. John constituency office.

the weather

Coastal areas can expect much colder temperatures tonight. Elsewhere little change is expected with sunny skies and cold temperatures continuing. The exception will be the north coast, where cloud will move in as a disturbance in the Gulf of Alaska starts to move down the B.C. coast.

Farm Vitality Urged To Curb Food Costs

If British Columbians want to curb the rising price of food there has to be a new food policy which will draw more families into farming and bring agricultural vitality to the province, a Saanich farmer told a People's Food Commission hearing Saturday.

George Aylard said preservation of farm lands was an essential factor to maintain the viability of family farm operations in British Columbia and it was essential that people support such a policy.

The commission, supported by church groups and various public organizations, has been described as a "gigantic do-it yourselve project."

It has no counsel, no paid reseachers and just about enough finances to get along. It depends entirely on people for its authority.

Taking a crack at land promoters, Aylard noted there were few farmers who would walk in to a housing development and start drawing up plans for expanding their farm operations.

"Yet there is a sector of the non-agricultural community that appears to feel very litle compunction about doing exactly the same thing on a farm, " he said."As soon as more people come to appreciate the fact that agricultural land in B.C. is 'used land' and not empty land, we will have come a long way towards solving the food problem."

Aylard defended marketing boards, stating that most Canadians fail to understand that the effective operation of the family farm unit is, in many instances, contingent on the on-going operation of producer marketing boards.

Marketing boards were not to blame for the rising cost of food, he said in pointing out that the real power in the Canadian food industry lay in large corporate concerns.

To back up his point, he said a university study revealed that a small mumber of corporations, many of them foreign owned, effectively controlled every link in the food chain beyond the farm gate.

"The food industry in Canada is heavily dominated by corporate concerns and in order to survive, the independent farmer must walk the fine line between them," he said.

Jack Warnock, a member of the commission, noted another land problem has emerged in the province.

Wealthy people, mostly from Vancouver, were buying up small farms in the Okanagan and doing nothing with the land. In some cases they were tearing up the orchards.

This was increasing the price of land, he said. At the same time the production of apples was dropping every year.

Speakers at the hearing made it clear that much more land could be brought into agricultural production on Vancouver island.

Art Garcia, representing the South Saaamich Farmers Institute, said interest in farming as a means of livelihood is on the upswing on Vancouver Island.

"People are actually looking for farms in Saanich," he said. "But the problem is water."

He noted the Greater Victoria water board is bringing water to the peninsula but farmers have been told it is only for domestic use.

You can't operate farms without water," he said. "American states spend billions in bringing water to farms, but here governments ignore the needs of farmers."

Warnock noted that in the Okanagan producers pay more than 10 times what than farmers south of the border pay for water.

"That was one of the benefits they got from the Columbia treaty," he said.

Garcia said some people complain that locally grown farm produce is protected from foreign imports.

"Let me tell you there are hundreds of manufactured goods protected from imports,"he said. "If they were not, most of the people here would be unemployed."

Jim Manly, who identified himself as the NDP federal candidate for Cowichan-Malahat-the Islands, said there were several factors which determined the cost and quality of the food people eat. One of these was the way in which food producing areas was used.

As an example, he pointed out the lack of government action to protect oyster grounds from logging operations.

He said oyster growers report that continued high use of harbors for log dumping, booming and storage is causing widespread damage to oyster grounds.

"In the last 20 years, half of the province's oyster ground has either been lost or restricted due to log boom operations and sewage disposal systems."

Press Barred From Hearing On CBC's Nash

TORONTO (CP) — The press was barred from a weekend arbitration hearing into the appointment of Knowlton Nash as announcer of the CBC's 11 p.m. newscast.

A hearing is being held concerning the appointment following a grievance filed Nov. 2 by the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Arbitrator George Adams ruled initially that the press would be allowed to stay at the hearing.

The union agreed with Adams, but after an afternoon of opposition by CBC lawyers the union reversed its position.

FORDS: MORE ACCIDENTS?

WASHINGTON (AP) — New U.S. government figures indicate owners of Ford Motor Co. autos have about 10 times as many transmission-related accidents than do owners of other makes of cars, the Detroit Free Press reports.

In a Washington-datelined story Sunday, The Free Press said it appears that the accident rate for 1970-78 Ford cars and light trucks under investigation by the National Highway Traffic Safety Adminstration may be more than 10 times higher than it is for General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp vehicles.

Marijuana Crops Keep The Economy From Going To Pot?

GUELPH, Ont, (CP) — The North American economy would get a $4-billion-a-year boost if Canadian and United States farmers could grow and distribute marijuana, according to a U.S. spokesman for a group favoring legalization of the drug.

Gatewood Galbraith, president of Kentucky Marijuana Feasibility Study, told a conference sponsored by the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws that North Americans spent $4 billion in Mexico and South America last year on the illicit drug.

Galbraith said growing marijuana could revitalize small farm operations for the production of textiles, rope, paper and oils. He predicted that North American farmers could average about $4,000 more in annual earnings by putting as little as one-sixteenth of an acre under marijuana as a cash crop.

Moves to legalize the plant for personal and industrial use are being opposed by large corporate interests such as patent medicine, cigarette and textile industries, he said.

MP Plotted Murder, British Court Told

MINEHEAD, England (CP) — A court was told today that Jeremy Thorpe, former leader of the British Liberal party, plotted the murder of a former male model with whom he had had a homosexual relationship because he regarded the man as a danger to his career.

Peter Kenyon, prosecuting for the Crown, made the allegation in his opening statemment at a magistrates' court hearing which is to decide whether Thorpe and three other men should go to trial by judge and jury.

Thorpe, 49, and the other three men are accused of plotting to murder Norman Scott, 38.

It is Britain's biggest political scandal in many years. Thorpe faces the gravest charges to be brought against a member of Parliament in modern times.

One of the defendants, nightclub owner George Deakin, asked for reporting restrictions to be lifted, and his request was granted.

The decision means that British media will be able to report fully on the hearing, which had not been expected.

Kenyon said that Thorpe became a member of Parliament in 1959.

"In the early 1960s, evidence will be that he had a homosexual relationship with Norman Scott," Kenyon said. "Thereafter Scott was a continuing danger to his career."

Scott had talked to other people and Thorpe's "anxiety became obsessive."

Early in 1969, in the presence of former Liberal MP Peter Bessell, who has come from his home in California to give evidence, Thorpe "incited his close friend David Holmes to kill Norman Scott," the prosecution alleged.

The prosecution said Holmes and Bessell tried to dissuade Thorpe and that "less dramatic measures were taken."

Attempts were made to get Scott to go to the United States and to set him up in a new job. Other measures included paying him a retainer and purchasing damaging letters from him.

Holmes, 48, a former deputy treasurer of the Liberal party, is one of the three men standing trial with the former Liberal leader on charges "that on divers days between the first of October 1968 and the first of November 1977 in the County of Devon and elsewhere you conspired together and with others to murder Norman Scott."

The other accused, apart from Deakin, is John Le Mesurier, 45, a businessman from South Wales.

Thorpe also faces an additional charge of inciting Holmes to murder Scott.

All four have been free on bail since they were charged on Aug. 4. They do not have to plead or give evidence during this hearing, but their lawyers are expected to cross examine the prosecution witnesses.

Students Still Boycott in Que.

During the weekend, police dispersed students who occupied administration buildings at colleges in Shawinigan and Chicoutimi. There were no incidents or arrests.

Meanwhile, rallies were planned for this week at campuses still untouched by the protest.

The students do not want their parents' income to figure in their requests for financial aid. Presently, unmarried students are considered dependants even though they may not be.

They also want course materials and expenses to be paid for by the education department. Tuition at the colleges, which act as academic stepping-stones between high school and university, is already free.

Education Minister Jacques-Yvan Morin has replied it would cost taxpayers an extra $200 million to meet the demands.

The boycotts, which reflect a long-standing issue in the colleges, began Nov. 9 in Rimouski and spread quickly to other campuses.

Municipal Election '78

It is difficult to find a common thread linking the behavior of Greater Victoria voters in Saturday's municipal elections. The hardy few who bothered to brave the wintry weather to get out to vote — fewer than 20 per cent in most parts of the region; in one school board poll in Saanich nobody voted — rejected incorporation for the Western Community but agreed to expensive sewers in View Royal and a water system for Saturna Island, generally returned incumbents at the top of the polls but gave strong support to newcomers on the school board and produced the inconclusive results expected in the Saanich industrial development referendum.

The one thing that perhaps was made clear was that the so-called "tax revolt" is not the overwhelming issue of the average voter that it has been widely believed to be. The support for View Royal sewers and the Saturna Island water system showed that voters are still willing to support projects that will lead to direct increases in property taxes if they believe they will receive value for their money.

The results in Saanich and on the school board also lend credence to the belief that the lowering of taxes is not the be-all and end-all of local government in the taxpayers' minds.

Several of the nine candidates in Saanich ran on a modified tax-revolt platform — strong support for more industrial and commercial development because it would broaden the municipality's tax base and ease the burden on ordinary homeowners. But the three candidates who topped the polls — Mary Casilio, John Mika and Irene Block — have all been extremely wary of industrial development and have placed far more emphasis on preserving neighborhoods and the environment than on widening the tax base.

In the school board elections, the issue was even more directly stated. The five incumbents running for re-election were all considered part of the "fiscal responsibility" (read: keep taxes low) side of the board, while the three newcomers all placed more emphasis on educational quality even if it costs a little more. "A good education system costs money, but ignorance costs more," was one slogan they espoused.

Two of the three were elected, topped in the polls only by Susan Brice, the well-known and popular board chairman. Moreover, the two incumbents who went down to defeat, Peter Dorazio and Bud Smith, were two who had been most closely associated in the public mind with strict spending restraints.

Supporters of the incumbents, already predicting steep school tax increases because of the addition of the newcomers to the board, are suggesting that the election did not entirely represent the feelings of the school district voters because turnout was so low, especially in Victoria where there were no other municipal elections. This is most unfair. It may be true that the results would have been different had the turnout been 100 per cent (or even 50 per cent), but the point remains: the average homeowner may care about higher taxes, but he didn't care enough to get out to vote. That being so, he has no grounds for complaint about the results or about the actions taken by the new trustees.

In the referendums held in the Western Community on sewers and municipal incorporation, voters were highly selective. Apparently, they were willing to approve a specific benefit like sewers but were unwilling to take the plunge into municipal incorporation, where the advantages are less tangible and farther off.

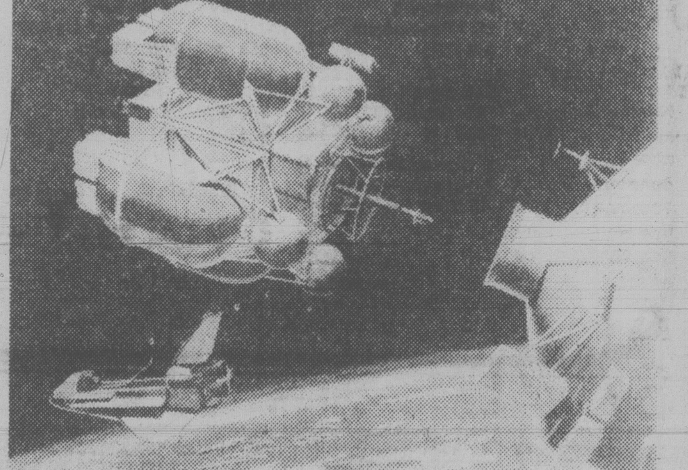
The two-to-one margin by which incorporation lost (almost three-to-one in View Royal) seems a decisive margin but it is remarkable that fully one-third of them voted to incorporate. That is a solid base of support upon which some future campaign could be built.

The referendum results present Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis with an unpalatable choice. He has made no secret of his desire to see these sprawling, populous suburbs incorporate, dropping heavy hints that if Colwood, Langford and Metchosin did not choose incorporation in a referendum, they might have it forced upon them by act of the legislature.

But with the Social Credit government as unpopular as it is on Vancouver Island, it appears unlikely that the minister will force anything on an unwilling Western Community with a provincial election in the offing.

The Capital Regional District may have something else in mind, however. Some directors are fed up with listening to the constant criticism of the CRD's supposed interference in local affairs from residents of the unincorporated western part of the region. After residents refused on Saturday to take responsibility for their own affairs, they can expect rather brusque treatment from now on at the CRD.

Sci-fi Fans Reply to Fulford



Space program is already paying dividends in technology on earth.

I am taking the time to write you in response to an article by Robert Fulford (reprinted from the Toronto Star) entitled The Science Fiction Lie (Times, Nov. 9).

I am sure that the extremely bitter taste his article left in my mouth was caused by his complete misunderstanding of what science fiction is. It is a literary genre, not an industry with a single message, "science will save us."

One gets the impression that Mr. Fulford is unaware of any written science fiction beyond the trash that lurked beneath the lurid covers of 1930s' pulp magazines. Certainly since 1945 most science fiction has been somewhat distrustful of science.

Very few science fiction writers and readers believe that science will save us. They believe, as Mr. Fulford does, that we will save ourselves. (By the way, I agree with Mr. Fulford about Close Encounters, as do Harlan Ellison, Isaac Asimov, Ursula K. LeGuin and a host of other science fiction writers who criticized the film for the same reasons Fulford does.)

What angers me is that Mr. Fulford saw fit to write a review of a film (which many science fiction fans do not regard as science fiction at all — UFOs are nut-cult material at best and most science fiction people have enough background to know how unlikely such cosmic visitations are) and a review of the magazine Omni and pretend that these two objects define science fiction.

In fact, nothing defines the boundaries of science fiction, which is what makes it such an important literary tool. There is often far more freedom of expression involved in SF than science. SF constantly ignores the limitations of science in order to concentrate on what is important about humanity.

I know of no science fiction writer, except possibly Jules Verne, who ever claimed he was predicting the future or even thought that predicting the future was worthwhile. More, like Ray Bradbury, "write to prevent a possible future." Even writers of hard SF which concentrates on technological detail, like Robert Heinlein, have said that their predictions were no more than, "the predictions of a man on a train who looks ahead to see a tunnel and says, 'darkness'."

I have one final axe to grind, and it is with Mr. Fulford's dim view of the space program and of science in general. In this I differ from many SF fans who openly distrust science. Each to his own. Certainly science has placed many demons at our front door — neutron bombs, cruise missiles and Trident submarines. Science is not always a tool for good. But science is a tool. It is futile to differentiate, as Mr. Fulford does, between being saved by science or being saved by ourselves. We are science, it is us. Science is a method we use to study the universe, it is a way that we touch things that are untouchable.

Without science both Mr. Fulford and I would — in all probability — be dead of bronchitis or diphtheria, or something more showy like the black death. We would be perpetually starving, eking out an existence, working sunup to sundown to gather the bare necessities of survival, without the time to look up at the stars and wonder.

Perhaps this appeals to Mr. Fulford. It horrifies me. Men are not ants building little towns, content to go their ordinary way through an ordinary billion years. Men are Will Shakespeares and Johann Sebastian Bachs and Sir Isaac Newtons and Galileos. Men dare to write, sing and dream, building upon the richness that is life, leaving no corner unexplored.

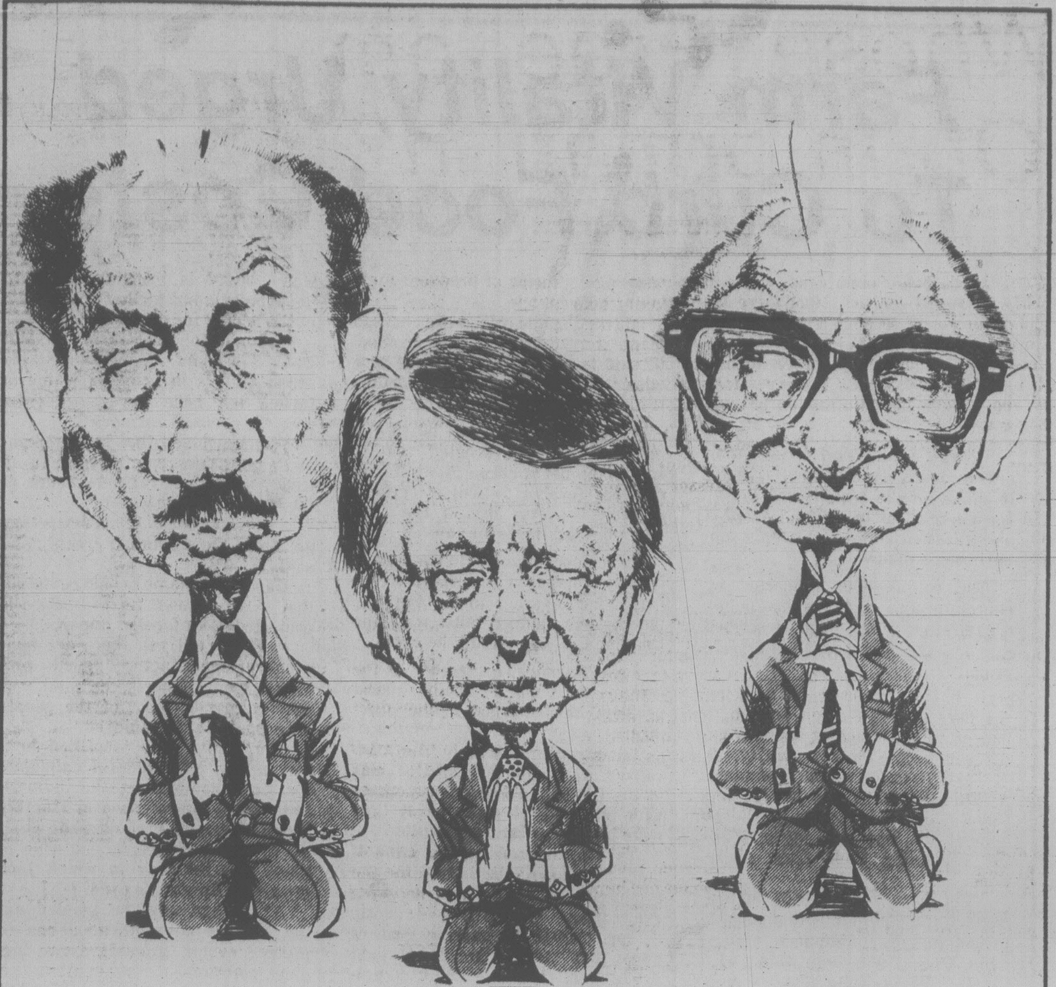
To this end, we find beauty everywhere. On Venus, where the refraction of the atmosphere is so great that the entire surface of the planet is visible to you, as if you stood in the bottom of a gigantic bowl. On Mars, where a volcano three times higher than Everest (30 kilometers) rears up massively in the crisp pink sky. On Jupiter, where a hurricane big enough to drown our entire planet (the big red spot) has raged for hundreds of years. Or, first and best of all, the blue and cloud-flecked Earth, richer in water than any other world and precious home of life. Earth, which we first saw a decade ago. Until that time we had never walked a little ways away and turned back, to see ourselves hanging tiny and fragile against a field of stars.

The space program has already paid back the people who financed it — in weather forecasting, medical technology, satellite data for prospecting, crop management, and environmental data, communications, firefighting techniques, and even sillier stuff like teflon frying pans and hang gliders.

"All the billions" that Mr. Fulford alludes to (which have been paid back already) still amount to a drop in the bucket. The entire NASA budget is spent by the department of health education and welfare in the U.S. every eight days.

In a month the Americans spend more on underarm deodorants. What shall it be, Ban Roll-on or the stars?

There is nothing spiritual to be gained from the space program? Perhaps, but we have seen us as we are, a delicate toy balanced precariously in space. A small world, but beautiful and unique. Perhaps Mr. Fulford's heart does not respond to this. But perhaps it does not respond to science fiction, or Bartok or Homer or even the sound of the wind and the stirring of the grass, upward, toward the sun. We shall not stop searching, reaching out for understanding of ourselves and everything about us. That is our purpose here. That is why we watch, and write, and sing. — Stan G. Hyde, President, Science Fiction Association of Victoria, 224 Michigan Street.



Let us pray.

Operation Eyesight

A recent NBC television special on Canada, Beyond Niagara, pointed out that while Alberta used to be known for its wheat and cattle, then for oil, it is now known for its world famous organization called Eyesight Universal (OEU).

Douglas Roche, an Edmonton MP, in his book Justice Not Charity starts the chapter on non-govenment organization by paying high tribute to Operation Eyesight. So does the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). Operation Eyesight Universal (address: P.O. Box 123, Calgary, Alta. T2P 2H6) is a small but a very effective Canadian organization dedicated to restoring sight to curable blind folks, prevention of blindness and training eye specialists and paramedical personnel in the developing world. It has 31 centres in 11 different countries. Last year alone it treated 175,000 people, opened 32,419 blind eyes. OEU's school children program in mountainous parts of Kenya covered 44,500 students and brought down the trachoma incidence from 39 per cent in a year.

The statistics are appalling. There are over 40 million blind individuals in our global village. 75 per cent of them could be cured or blindness could have been prevented. Five hundred million suffer from trachoma which may result in blindness. Over 100,000 children go blind every year because of Vitamin A deficiency in their diet.

Can you imagine the joy of a child who sees his mother for the first time! OEU's story is the story of miracles and the miracle of sight costs so little. Believe it or not, with the ridiculously low donation of $25 ($10 for the surgery of each eye, $2 for the cataract glasses, $3 for food and hospitalization for 10 days) you can give the priceless gift of sight to some hopeless and helpless blind destitute. Here the same operation costs well over $1,000! It is indeed a shame that for the lack of $25 someone has to lead the life in total darkness.

Donations to OEU are not only tax deductible but are also matched dollar for dollar by Ottawa. Sponsor a blind for gift of sight on Christmas, birthdays, memorials, and special occasions. — Mrs. Hansi Bish, 20 — Dallas Road.

Who Are Fascists?

As one who has been a tourist in Lebanon and Jordan on more than one occasion, I should like to remind Mr. D. Saab (letter, Die With Dignity, Nov. 10) that I did not treat Christians as fascists in my letter of Nov. 2. I stated clearly that the Lebanese struggle was a political one between the left and the right and not a religious one between Christians and Moslems. I also stated that there are Christians on the left as well as the right, but it was the right-wing Phalangists I called fascists. They are the more extreme element of the right, and have called their party Phalangists after the Spanish Phalangist party which is the fascist element in Spain. If I did not mention this in my previous letter, I apologize for the omission.

I have Arab friends in this country, in the United States, Great Britain, Lebanon and Jordan. Most of them are Palestinians and most are of the Christian faith, although I do have some Moslem friends as well.

The Palestinians did what they could to stay out of the Lebanese conflict, but unfortunately they were drawn into it by the Phalangists (backed up by the Zionists and the CIA), especially when a busload of them were ambushed and massacred by Phalangist militiamen early in the struggle.

I wish Mr. Saab a very pleasant stay in Canada and a safe journey back to Lebanon. I hope and pray that when he returns home he will find his native country in a state of peace and reconstruction. That lovely country, so badly torn by strife, badly needs peace.! — Richard D. Corrance, 710 Cormorant Street.

Communist or Not?

Katherine Chatterton, in her letter to the Times (Indefensible Gift, Oct. 31), refers to Nkomo and Mugabe as "acknowledged tools of the communists," and later as "communist killers."

The term communist is applied to these men, I suppose, because they are using military aid given to them by communist Russia.

I have no doubt that Russia gives them aid, hoping to have great influence over them if they win control of Rhodesia.

However, this does not mean that Nkomo and Mugabe are either communist or communist tools. To whom can people who are struggling to free their country from dictatorships like Nicaragua or illegal minority governments such as Rhodesia turn for military aid? Will they get it from the U.S.? Britain? West Germany? Japan?

Not likely. The U.S. armed and trained the national guard of Nicaragua, the force which Somoza has used to smash brutally each and every attempt of the people of Nicaragua to establish freedom and democracy in that country. Are the guerilla forces of that nation to be blamed if they accept military aid from any source which will supply it?

In like manner are the guerilla forces of Nkomo and Mugabe to be blamed for accepting military aid from whatever source was available? Until these guerilla forces put pressure on Ian Smith's government that government resisted all attempts to bring equality to the blacks of Rhodesia. The guerillas oppose the settlement offered by Smith because it is only a partial granting of equality. (Even Britain and the U.S. find this settlement offer unacceptable).

The aid offered by the World Council of Churches is to thousands of black refugees who have fled from Rhodesia to the bordering nations. The church is following the admonition of Jesus to feed the hungry, clothe the naked and give shelter to the homeless. Jesus did not stipulate whose side they should be on, only that the need should be there. — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.

Jewish Khazars

I should like to correct and complete the thesis given in H. Gilbert-Cook's letter of Nov. 8, misentitled Jews in Turkey.

Regarding the statement that "... we learn of Seljuk Turks and Kharza Turks adopting the Jewish religion" in Wells' and Runciman's histories, I cannot refer immediately to Runciman's History of the Crusades, but on p. 667 of Wells' Outline of History (1949 ed.) the Seljuks are described as orthodox Sunnites of Islam, who staged a successful revolt against the Shiites in power in Baghdad. On the previous page Wells states: "To [the] Jewish Khazars are to be ascribed the great settlements of Jews in Poland and Russia [to be precise, Lithuania]."

I refer Gilbert-Cook to Arthur Koestler's The Thirteenth Tribe, which deals with the adoption of Judaism by the Khazar state in the Middle Ages (a unique event in history) and the legacy they have left to this day by way of the roads of the shtetls of the Pale and the byways of East European history, largely unknown here in the western European tradition.

I should also like to relate that some years ago I read an article which contended that the Sephardim and Yemeni and other Oriental Jews in Israel are socially and economically suppressed by the Ashkenazim descended from the survivors of the Holocaust. Sabra triumphant, yid avenged. Devious and intricate (and always finally deadly) are the ways of chauvinism. — J. McIntyre, 2-494 Superior Street.

Animal Abuse

Words fail me to express the hideous horrors wild animals are suffering through man's neglect and lack of guts to back the humane trap. There are also other inhuman abuses in laboratories where animals suffer terrible agonies as they are tortured by experiments. Animal abuse is prevalent in Canada and men who could do something about it just sit in their high fancy offices and draw their high fancy cheques to keep pushing aside these very important issues.

We of the Association for the Protectyion of Fur Bearing Animals happen to be a very concerned body of people across this country and I'm sure there are tens of thousands more like us not holdng membership who would like to see our MPs with some backbone to stand up and be counted to hurry this piece of legislation into a reality. I'm not interested in which party you belong to — I'm sure in all parties there are people concerned and anxious to put into legislation what the present government has failed to do.

This "too bad" apathy and don't care attitude has gone on for too long, while our furry and feathered friends who cannot speak for themselves are being trapped, tortured and dying a lingering death because of us.

This does not only concern me but all of you — you are to blame if you do not speak and now. — Jean Reading, 242 Obed Avenue.

Aid Civilians

In response to world news in September, 1978 that 2.7 billion people in Vietnam needed emergency relief as a result of floods and storms, the worst natural calamities in Vietnam in 35 years, Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians sent out an appeal for funds. The response has been very heartening and a $5,000 bank draft has been sent on Nov. 3 to the Vietnam Peace Committee which is co-ordinating the relief work.

Also, Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians is sending its 48th shipment of children's clothing and medical supplies valued at $5,000 in the next week or two.

Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians has already sent $50,000 for equipping the Canada-Vietnam Hospital at Tien Son, Ha Bac province, this year.

The Vietnamese people, who suffered such enormous losses during the 30 years of war, and who are now compelled to protect their borders from Cambodian invasion and Chinese military attack, need all possible help. Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, Box 2543, Vancouver, B.C., V6B 3W8 will gladly accept donations for contiuing emergency food and medical relief in Vietnam. CAVC is a registered charitable organization and donations are deductible for income tax purposes. — Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians, Vancouver.

Whose Freedom Of Information?

By CONOR CRUISE O'BRIEN
London Observer

UNESCO, whose twentieth Assembly is meeting in Paris, has been in the news of late, more than in the past. It has been in the news because it has interested itself in news, and because the nature of its interest is ambiguous and, to many in the West, disquieting.

It need not, I think, be very disquieting, unless Western governments and other Western Institutions play the game of going a part of the way with UNESCO, in order to humor Third World governments, and in order not to leave the Soviets a monopoly of certain slogans and slogan-concepts.

The slogans and slogan-concepts in question have an intrinsic appeal to all governments which can totally control their own domestic flow of news, and would like to have as much control as they can over the international flow also. That is what underlies the concept of "balance" in the phrase "free and balanced flow of information" so dear to the UNESCO Secretariat, because so dear to the numerous governments in question.

These matters are at the heart of the debate in the UNESCO Assembly around the "Draft Declaration on the Mass Media" and around the "interim Report on Communications Problems in Modern Society" (the Sean MacBride Report).

These are documents which it would be dangerous even to amend, because even to amend them would be to participate in a kind of intellectual life-in-death. Their very language gives off a subtly nauseating perfume, like some liqueur manufactured in Auvergne out of the dried corpses of bees.

You cannot really get the full flavor without reading in full documents — available from UNESCO — and that I do not recommend, except to specialists. But you can get some foretaste of what you would be in for on reading the 79 pages of the Interim Report if you will contemplate the first sentence of Part I: "It is undoubtedly a truism to say that the world is today anxiously pondering the basic issues upon which the survival of our species depends, or which vitally affect the notion itself of the human condition."

Yek.

You may feel I am making too much fuss about wording: precision of thought and language is not to be looked for in reports of international committees. What's wrong with a little bit of vague uplift, a little bit of fudging of words and concepts, if it helps an international consensus to emerge?

There is something wrong with it, first of all, because UNESCO is supposed to be improving communication, and the pompous deadness of its own use of language and the confusion or nullity of its concepts, are signs that it is not doing what it is supposed to be doing, but the opposite. "The medium is the message": the author of that phrase, Professor Marshall McLuhan, was nominated to serve on the Interim Commission but his message was his withdrawal.

Second, some intellectual compromise might be accepted to secure international consensus, if international consensus were in fact desirable and attainable. The sort of consensus that is attainable is the sort embodied in the Draft Declaration and the Interim Report.

The Interim Report represents a "consensus" between among others, Hubert Beuve-Mery, the respected founder of Le Monde, on the one hand, and, on the other, Leonid Mitrofanovich Zamiatin, ex-Director-General of TASS, and Elebe Ma Ekonzo, Director-General of Agence Zaire Presse. This improbable trio agrees to tell us, for example, why freedom of information is really so terribly important.

Press Control Is the goal At UNESCO

"The paramount importance enjoyed (sic) by freedom of information in the family of human, and especially economic and social, rights, is explained quite simply by the fact that the right to be informed makes possible the exercise of all the other rights."

It is good to have this explained quite simply, with the authority and example of TASS and Agence Zaire Presse behind the explanation.

The trio and their associates are also much concerned about "the threat to democracy and individual freedom entailed by any limitation of the flow of information". They speak of "the associated concepts of free flow and balanced flow": a more sophisticated formulation, not that that matters, than the usual "free and balanced flow".

Countries where the govenment controls the Press, and countries where the government does not control it, cannot share a common code of values, or issue valid common declarations, on the subject of freedom of information. Obviously, it suits governments that control their own Press to pretend publicly that they are champions of freedom of information and therefore they like things like the Draft Declaration and the Interim Commission.

For corresponding reasons, governments that do not control their own Press should have nothing to do with such exercises, otherwise than by demonstrating their fraudulent character.

The first to applaud such a demonstration would be those writers and intellectuals of the Communist World and the rest of the Third World, who have to read, in their government-controlled Press, the unctuous discourse of their rulers on the subject of freedom of information.

Unfortunately, Western governments succumbed to the temptation of the joint declaration on this subject long ago, and cannot now fully extricate themselves from the consequences of that fall, the idol enshrined in the Preamble to the Constitution of UNESCO ". . . the States Parties to this Constitution, believing in the unrestricted pursuit of objective truth, and in the free exchange of ideas and knowledge . . ."

The subsequent transactions of UNESCO on this subject have been fully consistent with that thumping life.

In relation to the UNESCO debate, one great simplicity stands out. This is that overwhelmingly the greatest barrier between the peoples of the Communist World and the Third World and access to freedom of information is the barrier erected by the governments that rule over those peoples, and control their Press: those same governments that now so largely dominate the UNESCO debate on "freedom of information".

To the predicament of these people, and in particular of their writers and intellectuals, a discussion of the real and imagined shortcomings of the Western news agencies has almost no relevance. The only news agency to which the people of Zaire have access is Agence Zaire Presse, whose Director-General instructs the world on the problems of freedom of information.

Benedetto Croce, nearly 30 years ago, was already urging that UNESCO should be abolished. It should not, even now. It has useful work to do in development, conservation and in such fields of education as mass literary programs, and it deserves more, not less, help from the West in support of these activities. But UNESCO should be aware that every polluted word its organs pump out on the subject of freedom of information adds new weight to the argument of the great Italian champion of freedom.

Talking Tombstones

(A reprint of an earlier column)

russell baker

"What do you think of radio?" Fred Allen once asked Titus Moody. And Titus replied, "I don't hold with furniture that talks," thus expressing my own sentiments about talking tombstones. My view is that tombstones, like children, should be seen and not heard, and I admit it freely, knowing that child psychiatrists as well as champions of cemetery chitchat will pillory me as an enemy of both human and deceased expression. The view is reactionary, but nevertheless there it is. I would almost rather listen to an after-dinner speaker than to a talking tombstone.

Until now the graveyard has been one of the few places you could count on when you wanted to pass an hour without being harangued. A New Jersey outfit called Creative Tombstone Inc. promises to end all that. They are selling a computerized system installed in a solar-powered headstone that will not only issue notice when the grass needs tending and spray the air with incense, but also broadcast such intelligence as the departed may have chosen to impart to the living.

The present price is about $40,000, but mass marketing will doubtless lower it to the range of a new television set before too long. When that happens, tombstones all over the cemetery will have to compete for the audience. Can we doubt what the effect will be on the place of eternal rest?

In the early stages, when only a few plutocrats can afford to indulge in garrulity from the grave, dignity will be prevalent. The stroller may hear a tombstone, its voice activated by people sensors, intone: "Stroller, halt as you pass by. As you are now, so once was I."

Very quickly, however, a new tenant in an adjacent space will have to produce something to lure the stroller from his competitor's stone, something a little warmer, a little friendlier, perhaps: "Hi there, stroller. This was Will Whipsnade, and have I got a story for you? Born . . . Well, it doesn't matter too much when you're born does it?" And so on.

As chattering stones thicken around Whipsnade, competition for the audience will lead to more blatantly theatrical appeals for attention. As Tombstone One intones, "Stroller, halt as you pass by," and Whipsnade interrupts with, "Hi there, stroller. This was Will Whipsnade," Tombstone Three will shout, "It's a great pleasure to be here, ladies and gentlemen, and to have this opportunity to say a few words about my beloved host, Carlston Jibbles," only to be outshouted by Tombstone Four announcing, "A funny thing happened to me on the way over here . . . ."

My observation of cemeteries leads me to doubt that these mom-and-pop competitors will do much business for any length of time. The big operators almost always prevail in every cemetery.

If most of the tenants are under headstones three feet high, the big shots move in and settle under 40 feet of carved marble, trimmed with weeping angels, mourning stallions and allegorical ladies representing Victory, Honor, Justice and Tax Shelter. These tombstones will speak with voices that jam the frequencies of Will Whipsnade and Carlton Jibbles and will tell stories so cunningly composed by the most talented ghost writers that visitors will happily wait through five three-minute commercial breaks to learn how they come out.

Trying to compete with the big tombstones will be as futile as going up against NBC with a walkie-talkie. Most tombstones will be lucky if anybody even hears them saying, "Cut my grass and refill my incense dispenser." This will not stop the sale of talking tombstones to the relatively impecunious, for Vanity, as the Preacher saith, is not peculiar to the big-tombstone set, but toucheth all with its taint, and there is a time for living and a time for broadcasting from the grave.

I am already struggling to compose a message that will be as trenchant issuing from the crab grass 200 years from now as it is today, but have so far been unable to improve on Nelson Algren's: "Never play poker with a man named Doc and never eat at a place called Mom's."

Plagiarism, though the stuff of journalism, is dishonorable in tombstones, and I resist the temptation, as well as the temptation to steal Tom Lehrer's advice: "Remember why the good Lord made your eyes — Pla-gi-a-rize!" Perhaps something more in the Old Testament line is indicated. Something like: "Never trust a tombstone that blows its own horn."

A Stubborn Refusal to Accept Clark

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — " . . . It will be the policy of the Progressive Conservative government after the next election to expand and diversify the air services available to Canadians."

Joe Clark, Hansard, Nov. 8th. There speaks a man assured of the highest office . . . .shortly!

The shocking nature of such a prospect is my topic today.

A few days ago Flora MacDonald, MP (Kingston and the Islands) was reaming me out for a column about a likely Clark cabinet. In castigating me as old-fashioned and anti-feminine in naming her and Jean Pigott as near certain picks because Clark must have women ministers, Miss MacDonald said something interesting.

"Unlike Trudeau and you and men of your generation, Joe Clark hasn't this hangup. He's free. It doesn't matter a whit to him whether Jean and I are women. It will matter whether we're capable and useful. That's it."

"And why is it Joe Clark's home-free and we male elders are not?" I asked.

"Because he and so many in his age range weren't indoctrinated as you men were in typing women essentially as ancillary and rather odd when in roles traditionally handled by men. Maureen isn't in such a mould, nor are the acquaintances and friends she and Joe have."

So there's an aspect of Clark I'd not thought about. It is interesting, particularly when thought about along with the present prime minister and his much hullabellooed relationships with women.

On to other perceptions of Clark.

In the past fortnight I've had separate, private chats with four men about Trudeau's current dilemma. Each chat led to Joe Clark. What surprised me was the virulence of these men's detestation for Clark.

Who were these men? I can't name them, but all are nationally-known. One is a TV figure of magnitude, one is a prominent magazine journalist, one has a national reputation for wit and insight as a performer, the fourth is one of the few academics in Canada with a high recognition beyond his campus.

The dissimilar quartet have two things in common. Each was an enthusiastic and unofficial agent of Trudeaumania back in '68 and for some years after. Each is also very smart and well-educated and not bashfully unaware of these attributes.

With equipoise each recognizes Trudeau's time has run out; that he's not got much of a constituency left. Indeed, none of them speaks any longer as a part of that Trudeau-constituency. And each is snarky to a level of good entertainment about the pitiful Trudeau cabinet and "about-turns" of government policies.

CLARK
. . . contrast too great?

In sum, these smart guys are with it. They know Trudeau's got to go. They've intellectualized it wittily.

But when each shifts to the alternative . . . what a malice!.

The TV star's phrase for Clark: "A really little man."

The wit: "He's as shallow and dry as the Dead Sea."

The professor: "Lord help us, the guy hasn't two half-thoughts to put together."

And I heard again about Clark's law school failures, his inability to tie a reef-knot, his fondness for Cokes, his absolute ignorance of any of the arts.

I could make no conversational headway against such virulence. Indeed, my intellectual competence said honestly was in question as seemingly an advocate of Clark as prime minister. These men really will not consider Clark as a credible alternative.

What is at the core of their animus to Clark is simply, I think, the enormous contrast he is to their fallen hero. Yes, Trudeau should go. But not, Oh, Lord, not to be succeeded by this twerp, Clark.

I opened today with Clark's stated assumption that soon he will be prime minister. It may be a sound strategy to project such positivity. He and his colleagues, however, should realize that the resistance, indeed the contempt for this prospect, is deeply felt by many of the most articulate and 'read' or 'heard' people in the country.

They're so set against Clark they won't hear about useful qualities he has as political leader which Trudeau has never had or not developed.

Moderates and Militants Battle for Labor Control

By GINNY GALT
Canadian Press

VANCOUVER — Moderates and militants square off this week in a toughly-contested fight for control of the 250,000-member British Columbia Federation of Labor.

For years the federation has followed an independent, militant course under the direction of president George Johnston and secretary-treasurer Len Guy.

But both men have stepped down and delegates now must decide whether to continue the hard-line style of Johnston and Guy or to adopt a more conciliatory approach, with closer ties to the New Democratic Party.

Bob Donnelly, president of the Telecommunications Workers Union, is running for federation president on a platform aimed at carrying on British Columbia's distinctive militant brand of trade unionism. Donnelly was nominated as a candidate last month at a controversial meeting of federation officers.

Pitted against Donnelly is Jim Kinnaird, former president of the B. C. and Yukon Building Trades Council. He is the candidate chosen by those seeking to change the direction of the federation.

Kinnaird says he is not opposed to the policies adopted by the federation in the past year, but believes a change to more conciliatory style of leadership is necessary.

Delegates to the convention, which starts today and ends Friday, are told in a report from the outgoing executive council: "We have been determined to carry out our policies and programs even though many around us have counselled us to seek a softer, shinier, slicker image.

"We have taken tough and sometimes unpopular stands in order to win disputes in spite of the fact that we have been criticized for not responding to 'public attitudes.'

"We have put the interests of our membership and the trade union movement ahead of other political considerations."

The federation every year adopts the standard union policy of political support for the NDP, but B.C. labor leaders have always reserved the right to criticize the NDP for policies they disagree with. The B.C. labor body also has taken aim occasionally at the central Canadian Labor Congress.

Congress president Dennis McDermott could face a hot time Tuesday when he is scheduled to speak to the federation.

The CLC executive council refused to support the Canadian Union of Postal Workers in its decision last month to defy Parliament's back-to-work order, while the B.C. federation's executive council offered the postal workers "full and unhesitating support."

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the 23,000-member postal union is set to address the convention a few hours before McDermott is to speak. Parrot and eight other executives of his union face criminal charges of defying an act of Parliament. The maximum penalty, on conviction, is two years in prison.

The delegates will have a full four days to debate ideology and size up the candidates. Elections are Friday.

At least three candidates are expected to run for secretary-treasurer.

Dave McIntyre, who was appointed by the federation executive to serve as secretary-treasurer after Guy retired in May, is running for a two-year term.

He originally was nominated by the federation officers, but has since switched his allegience to Kinnaird.

However, some of the major Kinnaird supporters are backing Mike Kramer of the Canadian Union of Public Employees for secretary-treasurer.

Donnelly says he will pick another running mate as secretary-treasurer and his choice is to be announced during the convention.

Jack Munro of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), one of Kinnaird's key backers, has criticized the federation officers' meeting that nominated Donnelly and McIntyre because neither the building trades nor the IWA, the federation's largest affiliate, participated.

The executive council says in its report to delegates the labor movement faces harsh attacks from business and governments.

"The question is not whether we are capable of overcoming and meeting these challenges, but whether we will find amongst ourselves the necessary solidarity, organizational ability and leadership.

"The B. C. Federation of Labor has been recognized across Canada has the most effective central labor body in the country.

VALUABLES DESTROYED IN BLAZE

COURTENAY (CP) — More than $20,000 worth of art, antiques and other valuables were lost when fire destroyed a house, about 15 kilometres north of here.

Neighbors said the owners of the house, Don and Dale McCririck, are vacationing in Africa. They said the house was not insured.

A police investigation is continuing.

Hydro 'Spoiled Child'

NELSON (CP) — Robert Bonner will be fired as British Columbia Hydro chairman if the New Democratic Party forms the next provincial government, according to party leader Dave Barrett.

Barrett said in an interview that Hydro is like a spoiled child of the government and the government refuses to deal with it.

Barrett, who attended a party caucus meeting during the weekend, also criticized Hydro's proposed diversion of the Kootenay River, saying the province does not need the energy Hydro is projecting.

"The B.C. Energy Commission has predicted only half the projected power demands Hydro uses to make its case for more Hydro installation," he said. "The idea of damming more rivers is ludicrous."

The opposition leader also said he was against the proposed uranium mining project in the East Kootenays.

"Because there is no answer for atomic waste disposal, we shouldn't be doing a damned thing with nuclear power," Barrett said.

On Sunday, the NDP caucus was asked to support the damming of Murphy Creek between Castlegar and Trail.

Another brief presented to the caucus asked the NDP to make right-to-work legislation an election issue.

Fischer Gets UVic Position

University of Victoria arts and science dean Dr. Alfred Fischer has been named acting vice-president for academics.

Fischer, who was on a study leave for 1977-78, will temporarily replace Dr. George Pedersen who has left UVic to become president of Simon Fraser University.

Fischer, 46, has been a professor in the chemistry department since 1969. In 1975 he was appointed to a five-year term as arts and science dean.

Dr. Izzud-Din Pal has been named acting arts and science dean, a post he assumed when Fischer began his sabatical.

Ape Boards Bus

BANGKOK (AP) — A 132-pound orang-utan escaped from a zoo in this Thai capital and jumped into a passing bus. The bus driver slammed on the brakes, the passengers ran out the rear entrance and the 20-year-old ape abandoned the vehicle. His keepers tracked him down and returned him to his cage.

Mill Bay Man Identified As Victim of Road Fall

Shawnigan RCMP have identified Harry Adlam, 73, of Mill Bay, as the man found dead by the Trans-Canada Highway at Bamberton early Saturday.

Adlam apparently fell to his death down a 25-foot bank where the highway crosses over the B.C. Cement Company private road.

James Corbett, 28, of 3005 Shakespeare, is in poor condition following a Friday night traffic accident at Bay and Fernwood.

In Sooke, RCMP say a seven-year-old boy, Kyle Krenbrink of Wells O'Weary Trailer Court received back and hip injuries when struck by a car driven by Raymond Mullett of Kaltasin Road, Sooke.

Police say the boy apparently darted out in front of the car.

This year alone we'll spend $80 million on R&D to stay a step ahead of the pack. That's what it takes to keep our people working.

Telecommunications is one of the world's fastest growing industries. Also one of the most competitive.

It's a high-technology business where breakthroughs are being made at a breakneck pace. If Canada is to remain competitive, we must lead this technological race.

It's an expensive race. In the past decade alone we've invested $400 million in R&D at Northern Telecom. Bell-Northern Research, a subsidiary, with 2,200 employees, is Canada's largest industrial research organization.

Telecommunications R&D is complex and costly. Return is often long-term. Our SP-1 electronic switching system, for example, took 10 years and $95 million to develop.

The benefit to the Canadian economy is, and has been, substantial. The SP-1 program has maintained 15,000 man-years of Northern Telecom manufacturing employment from 1971 and a further 1,500 man-years of R&D employment. It has paid more than $230 million in manufacturing wages and salaries and more than $88 million in federal sales and corporate income taxes. It has also accounted for thousands more man-years of work for suppliers to Northern Telecom and millions more dollars in wages and salaries to their employees.

Our Digital Multiplex System (DMS*) switching systems have been in development for 10 years. By year-end 1979, with the full line available, the R&D bill for this family of digital switching systems alone will total $120 million. We expect these new systems to be as successful as the SP-1 systems.

Within the next five years, we anticipate we will have to increase our R&D investment to $200 to $250 million a year.

To finance such massive investments, we must achieve even greater success in international markets.

The Canadian market is too small of itself to generate the sales and earnings large enough to fund the R&D needed to keep the Canadian telecommunications system ahead of the world and us ahead of the foreign multinationals with which we compete.

It won't be easy. Our prices cannot reflect the fact that Northern Telecom currently funds 92 percent of its own R&D costs, while many of our international competitors benefit from government funding that ranges from one-half to 100 percent of all R&D costs.

Yet, to compete successfully, we must maintain a significant technological edge. We must continue to search for ways to increase what is already the largest single corporate expenditure for industrial research in this country.

Because that's what it takes to keep our people working.

'Zoysias' Spells a Winner

NEW YORK — The owner of a Manhattan billiards parlor, who says he used to read three or four books a week, showed off his word wisdom Sunday by winning the second annual Times Square Scrabble Championship.

Among the words Steve Pfeiffer plucked down was 'zoysias,' which is a type of lawn grass.

"Whenever I see a word I don't know, I look it up," said the 33-year-old bachelor, explaining how he acquired a large vocabulary.

DODGE CITY, Kan. — Nine-year-old Wade Jacobson of Des Moines, Iowa, who has cystic fibrosis, got his wish to see this cowboy capital of TV's Gunsmoke fame, thanks to the Shriners.

Wade, his parents Mr. and Mrs. Dale Jacobson and Shriner officials who helped raise $400 for the trip arrived here Saturday.

Wade was decked out in black cowboy garb, given a six-gun and lariat and named honorary deputy marshal in front of the Long Branch Saloon.

At the saloon, Miss Kitty, Clancy the Bartender and the rest of the Boot Hill gang performed for Wade to the music of Doc the Piano Player.

NEW YORK — Lennie Tristano, a pianist and composer who once played with jazz greats Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Parker, is dead at age 59.

Tristano suffered a heart attack in his New York City home Saturday.

The jazz pianist began his career as a saxophone player in the late 1930s and 1940s when he played with the Gillespie and Parker bands.

He was known for his creative jazz improvisations and methods, which he passed on to his students, including jazz saxophonist Lee Konitz and Warne Marsh, pianist Sal Masca and Connie Caruthers.

Trudeau Govt. is Dead, Set the Funeral - Douglas

"The only thing left to do is to set the date for the funeral," Douglas told more than 1,000 persons who gave him a standing ovation when he spoke at the banquet of the Saskatchewan NDP convention.

Douglas, a former Saskatchewan premier, said the return of Premier Alan Blakeney's NDP government in the recent provincial election, coupled with party gains in federal byelections last month, had given the NDP a boost across Canada.

The job now was to ensure enough NDP candidates are elected in the next federal election, expected in the spring, to give the party the balance of power in the House of Commons, he said.

The 74-year-old Douglas, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, lashed out at the Progressive Conservative stand on natural resources.

Petro-Canada's bid to buy control of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. was, at long last, a response by the Liberal government to pleas that the Crown corporation push ahead with oil development, he said.

But he said the Conservatives want to see Canada's energy future left in the hands of United States-controlled multinational oil corporations.

The Conservatives also have pledged to get rid of Petro-Canada if they are elected, said Douglas, Saskatchewan's premier from 1944 to 1961.

What will happen then to Petro-Canada's plans to develop heavy oil in Saskatchewan?

He said that with Petro-Canada involved in heavy-oil development, Canadians can expect to have energy at a fair price, something that can't be counted on if the heavy oil is controlled from outside the country.

In the next federal election, "unless you elect the NDP, you're going to take the worst licking that you've ever had in your life."

NDP Hits CUPW Action

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation ordering striking postal workers back to work was unjust but it should not have been violated, according to federal NDP Leader Ed Broadbent.

"If we sanction the violation of every unfair law that is passed, we would be sanctioning the violation of almost every law passed in Canada," Broadbent told 150 delegates to an Ontario NDP women's committee conference.

Striking members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers defied government back-to-work legislation earlier this month and remained off the job. The workers returned only after the union leadership was charged with failing to obey the law.

Broadbent said a clear distinction must be drawn between unfair laws "which we should work like hell to change" and laws, such as South Africa's apartheid laws, which need to be violated and defied.

Grace Hartman, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, was attacked by a delegate for making little reference in her keynote speech to the issue of the postal workers.

Mrs. Hartman told the delegate that the government intended to divide the labor movement by setting the public sector against the private sector during the postal strike.

The government's strategy showed its "complete inability to deal with its employees," she said.

Mrs. Hartman said her union backed the postal workers because "the issues were not necessarily ours, but the fight was everyone's fight."

THEFT RING BROKEN IN REGINA

REGINA (CP) — A combined task force of city police and RCMP arrested 12 area residents and recovered almost $200,000 in stolen property in raids aimed at breaking up "highly-organized" theft ring.

Police said raids were carried out on 40 houses and businesses in Regina, Regina Beach, Esterhazy, Indian Head, Pilot Butte, Weyburn and Carlyle late last week.

Those arrested face nearly 85 charges, ranging from breaking and entering, theft and possession of stolen property to conspiricy to commit theft.

Shot Mayor Improving

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Mike Solski, the mayor of nearby Nickel Centre who was shot twice at an open council meeting Wednesday, remains in the intensive care unit but his condition is improving, a hospital nursing supervisor said Sunday.

Solski, 59, suffered bullet wounds to a shoulder and his abdomen.

Romeo Kerim, 63, of Sudbury, has been charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting. Kerim has been remanded to Friday for psychiatric examination.

Take a few minutes to think about your more successful endeavors. You may find a technique, an attitude or a piece of strategy that can assist you here.

A few years ago, I studied Aikido, the Japanese martial art. There was a certain pivot that I couldn't seem to master. When I turned I was clumsy and slow. Often I lost my balance.

One day the teacher explained: "When you turn you must turn all at once. Now you are lookig at me and your mind is this way. When you turn, take your mind with you. You must change your mind."

Of course, he might have simply said to turn my head along with my hips, instead of looking behind. But, the emphasis was rightly placed on attitude.

I was fascinated and I practised the pivot thousands of times there and at home until I was changing my mind. The words stayed with me long after leaving Aikido, although I wasn't sure how else I could apply them to my life.

Around this time, I still drifted occasionally into depressing thoughts about coping. Often they were hard to shake. I still found it far easier to preach tabling all discussion than to practise it. And, I'd drift into long, involved debates about the sanity of quitting until my slogan saved me.

One day, it occurred to me that I might apply the "change of mind" to withdrawal instead of wrestling free as I'd been doing, why not a simple pivot? Something fast and smooth. No pep talks, deep breathing or meditation. When I was in trouble, falling for the mind games, could a simple pivot bring me around?

It wasn't any easier than the Aikido pivot had been. But I worked at it the same way and kept at it persistently. What I wanted was the physical sense of tuning from one mood to another; from an attitude of coping to one of feeling high on self-control and a clean bill of health.

No heroics. No big thing. Just a simple change of mind. A pivot from the ads to the facts. A positive, physical high.

Once again, it took practice, as most worthwhile things do. While I practised I paid attention to the workings of the mind games. So should you. The trickier your mind gets the better. Once you know it and control it, you find yourself less easily controlled by others.

Look around you. Your own pivot could lie anywhere. It's far easier to change your mind than it is to cope.

Find your pivot and practise. Now give it one more Monday. Your attitude is everything.

SOOKE RECOUNT REQUESTED

A recount has been requested in Sooke School District by third-place finisher Jack Hannam.

Hannam narrowly missed winning one of two seats when he finished 16 votes behind Allan Littler in Saturday's election.

Littler was second to incumbent Irene Lane, who won by a healthy margin.

The race was split into two zones: Belmont and Sooke.

A total of six candidates ran for two seats in the Belmont zone.

In the Milnes Landing zone, incumbent Horst Doniecki beat opponent Donald Stansall.

Doniecki, a Sooke electrician, is chairman and a six-year veteran of the board.

CLEAN AIR DAY

Next Thursday will be Clean Air Day at Shoreline junior secondary school.

Vice-principal Rick Mark says the students and teachers will spend the day delving into the dangers of smoking and the need to quit.

There will be films, rap sessions and displays including a collection of David Cotter's articles which the Times is running.

Mark says he has no idea how many of the 350 Grade eight to 10 students attending the school are smokers but those who are will be invited to join an IQ or "I'm Quitting" club.

"We hope to create an environment where it will be socially acceptable for kids to be in the club," he says.

The first person joining will be principal John Robertson, a heavy smoker for 35 years.

Mark says parents and Shoreline residents are invited to take part in the program during the morning.

In the afternoon groups of students under their teacher advisers will take part in a variety of activities emphasizing the importance of clean air and clean lungs to enjoy it.

p.m. with gusts of 93 km/h or 58 miles per hour.

The storm became fierce at 10 a.m. Sunday and again at 4 p.m. with blasts at 80 km/h.

The wind abated today and should be fairly calm until Wednesday when a moist offshore storm should produce snow.

At the peak of the wind's fury, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes were jolted when a tall tree close to the house was pushed over by the gale.

"It was leaning against the house," Mrs. Rhodes said today. "Fortunately, we were able to get a private tree service company to come out and cut it down."

B.C. Hydro crews worked up to 16 hours at a stretch during the weekend, trying to restore power.

All lines were expected to be back in service by nightfall

VOTERS IN QUANDARY

Saanich Wants Industry But Doesn't Know Where

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier today conceded that Saturday's industrial park referendum was inconclusive and surrounded by some obvious confusion.

But he said the result shows clearly that Saanich voters favor broadening the municipality's tax base by industrial development.

"On the face of it I am reasonably happy," he said.

"I was told by all the experts that this question was too complicated and it would not be understood. That appears to have been borne out in terms of siting, but I think the larger question has been resolved."

A similar comment came from Irene Block, who won a council seat Saturday on her first attempt.

Block, whose campaign stressed respect for neighborhood concerns and a cautious attitude toward development, said: "What the residents showed is that while they want to have some industry, they are also very, very confused and don't really know what the issues are that surround this whole question."

To the general question whether residents favor the establishment of an industrial park, 5,792 replied yes and 3,221 no.

The vote rejecting the Interurban area as a site for the park was: yes, 2,988; no, 4,071. And the third question on the ballot showed 4,347 residents supporting the Royal Oak site with 3,496 opposed.

The voter turnout was 23.3 per cent, slightly higher than the 21.3 per cent poll in the 1976 off-year election when there was no referendum.

Ben Pires, president of the Royal Oak Community Association, said today an association member who assisted at the polls Saturday was amazed at the variety of combinations in voting.

In some cases residents voted no to industry in general but then supported both the Interurban and Royal Oak sites, he said.

But Pires said Royal Oak residents opposed to the earlier Saanich plan for an industrial park there felt that "we did pretty well, in spite of the money they (the Victoria Chamber of Commerce) spent."

Couvelier said he will recommend to council tonight that the referendum results be analysed by University of Victoria political scientist Dr. Dan Koenig. He feels such an analysis, including a study of the answers by individual polling areas, could be useful.

Commenting on the election itself, Couvelier echoed comments from other council members that the balance on council between pro-development and anti-development groups remains largely unchanged.

Elected along with Block were incumbents Mary Casilio and John Mika, who have both indicated a willingness to heed neighborhood opinion in voting against development proposals.

Sandy Noel, returning to the council he previously served for 12 years, beat incumbent Ian Cass into fifth place in the race for four seats.

Noel stressed during his campaign that he would try to restore a measure of harmony to a council divided by friction in the past two years.

Cass said today there was little question that the trio who topped the polls — Casilio, Mika and Block — were "the slate favored by the NDP" and seen by Saanich community groups as the candidates most ready to act in accordance with the groups' wishes.

"I don't know whether that is a true statement or not but there is little question that they were supported by the NDP machine."

(Block is a staunch Progressive Conservative, and tried to win the Saanich-The Islands seat for the Tories in the 1975 provincial election).

Cass predicted that the new council will continue to be a "do-nothing council" which, lacking strong and innovative people, will continue to spend much of its time and energy on political posturing.

He said the election result shows it is becoming increasingly dificult for someone of modest means and an independent stance to succeed in any branch of politics.

"You either need substantial financial backing or group or party support," he added.

More Spending On Education Probable: Brice

Greater Victoria school board election results are a message from the voters to increase education spending, chairman Susan Brice said today.

Brice, who topped the polls even though she is considered among the hard-line budget-balancers, said the budget will probably increase next year as a result of the upset of Trustees Peter Dorazio and Bud Smith, both advocates of budget control.

"Those who exercised their franchise to vote indicated board policy of fiscal restraint was not in keeping with the public's wishes," said Brice.

She was surprised at the results.

Newcomers Winfield Mott and Martin Levin, campaigning for educational quality and long-range planning, finished a strong second and third behind Brice.

Trustees Dr. Mark Fisher and Peter Yorke placed fourth and fifth respectively.

Brice said the balance of power on the board has shifted from trustees whose priority is keeping a lid on spending to a majority of trustees who believe in beefing up the education system.

She said she won't run again for board chairman. Brice has been chairman for two of her four years on the board.

The show of support is gratifying and makes up for the time, effort and worry that is part of being a trustee, she said.

Trustee-elect Martin Levin said today he is pleasantly surprised at his strong showing.

He said the results show how the electorate feels about the performance of the previous board.

People can expect to see a new board in January that will place more emphasis on long-range planning and parent involvement in the classroom and at the board level.

Levin said the new board will put an end to "chipping away of various programs in schools."

The upset of two incumbents came about because community groups were angry at the boards short-sighted handling of the school closure issue, and its lack of communication with parent groups, he said.

Ousted trustee Dorazio said he is stunned and disappointed by the upset.

Dorazio said he hasn't analysed his defeat and doesn't know why voters reacted the way they did.

But he said he depended on support from Greater Victoria residents and the turnout was weak.

He said he will not run for school board in Victoria again. He served one two-year term.

Biennial Voting Blamed For Poor Turnout

Victorians stayed away from the polls in droves Saturday and the cold weather had nothing to do with it, Ald. Murray Glazier said today.

Only 1,859 Victorians cast ballots in the school board election, although a total of 35,000 were eligible.

Glazier blamed the recently-adopted biennial voting system for the dismal turnout.

"We've got to reconsider these biennial elections," he said. "The school board ought to get on the same cycle we're on. It just isn't right to have an election where the turnout is this low."

Under the new system, used for the first time in Victoria this year, half the school board seats came up Saturday; the second half will come up in 1980, with municipal elections scheduled for next year.

"This system means that the school board will have a problem (with low voter interest) every other year," said Glazier. "This isn't working."

He said that with municipal and school board seats up at the same time voters would have a much greater reason to get out and cast their ballots.

West Communities Ball in B.C. Court

The overwhelming defeat of the proposal to incorporate Colwood-Langford, View Royal and Metchosin leaves the next move up to the provincial government, Colwood director Howard Drummond said today.

He disagreed with a top senior municipal affairs official who said Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis has no power under the Municipal Act to do anything else but call for another referendum.

"The mechanics are there to do it if they wish to do it," Drummond said.

He said that under the Municipal Act, the provincial cabinet can force such areas to form municipalities.

Chairman of the special restructuring committee, Drummond noted that the report of the regional district review committee, recently presented to Curtis, recommends that regional districts be empowered to force incorporation on areas with populations such as those in Colwood-Langford.

Asked if the Capital Regional District would use this power if given it, Drummond said municipalities such as Victoria and Saanich would force the regional board to take action.

"They're a little choked up about doing our work for them," he said, adding that regional action would "get the government off the hook."

Regional board chairman Jim Campbell said that while he didn't believe it is that urgent for Metchosin to incorporate, it is "urgent in Colwood-Langford and I'm a little disappointed people in that area didn't see it that way."

The Colwood-Langford vote was 67 per cent against incorporation, in Metchosin 63½ per cent of voters rejected incorporation while in View Royal the vote was 71 per cent against incorporation.

Colwood-Langford's population in the latest census, 1976, was 22,967 while View Royal's was 4,065 and Metchosin's 2,816.

Formed into a municipality, Campbell said Colwood-Langford residents would not then be "riding on the rest of the taxpayers" and would get "a hell of a lot better service" than now by relying on the regional district and the provincial government.

Tongue-in-cheek, Campbell said the defeated referendums showed that the voters didn't find the regional board as "obnoxious" as he had presuned they did.

Langford director Ed Lubick said he disagreed with having the Colwood-Langford area forced to incorporate after voters had taken the time and trouble to turn out in large numbers to reject it.

"It would be asinine for the regional district or anybody else to change that. That's just silly," he said.

A yes vote had been predicted in Metchosin. Metchosin director Mac Tipton said he feared the defeat could lead to the loss of Metchosin as a unit.

Sewers Could Be in Place In 18 Months

View Royal residents will get sewers in 18 months to two years, View Royal regional director Al Beasley said today.

A total of 977 voters faced Saturday's freezing temperatures to vote 67 per cent in favor of having their area sewered.

This was the fourth View Royal sewer vote and it was a personal triumph for Beasley who has campaigned for sewers for 10 years.

Beasley said: "The first thing is to get a bylaw drawn up, and then go ahead and get things under way."

He said it was obvious the voters realized the time was right because the provincial government will give substantial financial assistance, due to the building of the new Helmcken Road hospital.

Being able to hook into the trunk sewer planned to serve the hospital will reduce over-all costs to View Royal residents substantially.

The provincial government will contribute $3,6624,000, federal grants will amount to $214,000 and residents will pay $1,377,000.

Figures show that a home with a 75-foot frontage will pay about $169.36 a year to be hooked into the sewer system. This amounts to $4,250 over a 25-year period.

Fire Cuts Queried By New Alderman

A newly-elected alderman said today he questions Oak Bay council's decision to reduce the fire department by four men at the end of this year.

Norm Pimlott, who narrowly missed re-election a year ago, came second in Saturday's election.

PIMLOTT
. . . no better off

He said today that "from the top of my head" he is opposed to the reduction of the fire department, which would involve three layoffs and not filling one vacancy.

But he wanted to study a report by the firefighters themselves, in response to a management consultant's report, before making a final decision.

"Being in the insurance business, I know what can happen when there is a drastic cut in a fire department. If it is too drastic, the fire insurance goes up and you are no better off," he said.

He opposed the consultant's suggestion that a volunteer fire force augment the reduced full-time fire department.

"That's nonsense," said Pimlott. "There are too many elderly people in Oak Bay for this."

Re-elected to council were Doug Watts and Shirley Dowell. Writer Terry Reksten trailed.

The turnout dropped 10 per cent to 23.49 per cent, a trend seen in Esquimalt and North Saanich.

In Esquimalt, the turnout dropped four per cent to 19.2 per cent. Incumbents Barry Gilbert, Larry Mann and James McEvay were re-elected and Grant Mebs, in his second try, trailed.

In North Saanich, the election produced the lowest turnout in 10 years — 24.9 per cent.

Incumbents James Cumming and Robert Thompson were re-elected along with Owen Philp, a farmer who declared earlier he will run for mayor in 1979. He served one year as an alderman in 1976-77 and was defeated by Mayor George Westwood a year ago.

Incumbent alderman Lawrence Fast was defeated.

On the Buses, a Pleasant Way to Go

WE HAD BEEN KEEPING our eyes peeled for an interesting bus trip, and this fall one happened along. It was to be a two-day junket to Seattle, its purpose a viewing of the treasures of Tutankhamun on display in that city.

"Get here early," the girl behind the wicket at the bus depot warned us. "That's the only way you can be sure of seats together."

Take-off time was scheduled as 7 a.m. We arrived at 6:30 to find the depot closed. Presently our driver arrived, beating his hands together against the morning chill. He unlocked the big tour bus with its B.C., Washington and Nevada licence plates that would carry us south.

On board, with the engine purring and welcome heat beginning to circulate, the day's prospects seemed brighter. We chose a seat from the empty rows and settled down to wait.

Other pilgrims to the King Tut exhibit began to arrive. We had expected a uniform old-trout age level, but were surprised to find that the passengers ranged from children through young-adult to spry elderly.

Our trip guide swung on board. She introduced herself — her name was Doreen, a pleasant, sturdily capable woman with a brisk sense of humor — and briefed us on the expedition.

Because of lack of hotel space, she said, we would put up in an Olympia Hotel that night. Next day, we would drive back to Seattle, spend four hours at the exhibit, then head home to Campbell River.

John, our driver, slipped behind his wheel. Doreen subsided to the portable box-seat where she would ride up front. With a pleasant sense of an adventure beginning, we rolled out of the depot.

Win and I had never gone on a bus tour before. One of our fears was that it would be loused up by the kind of gung-ho buddyism that leans heavily on first-name acquaintance and community singing.

Not so. Doreen did turn on some music, but it was quiet, and soon faded out. We were left to become casually acquainted with our neighbors in our good time and theirs.

Freed from the responsibility of piloting a car, I found it pleasant to roll through the green-and-golden countryside over a freeway I had driven not many weeks before. We picked up Olympia's domed state Legislative Building in the early evening, and homed in on our motel.

For a treat, we had promised ourselves dinner in one of the Northwest's truly superlative seafood restaurants.

This is Craig's Oyster House, a plain-jane dining spot snugged in at the end of Puget Sound on Fourth Avenue, which serves the oyster in its various manifestations, and much else besides.

Win and I had crab in Hollandaise sauce over avocado. The thought of that feast haunts me still.

Next morning, assembled and checked into our seats, we pushed off for Seattle and its art museum.

The modern art pavilion which houses the Tutankhamun exhibit in a series of rather hokey manufactured tomb chambers, was crowded with a steady procession of viewers. In a corner of each chamber, an armed guard on a little platform kept an eye on the crowd.

This, I suppose, is necessary. Even the smallest object of the hundreds so effectively displayed is priceless.

The mummy of the boy king — he died at the age of 18 after a reign of nine years — remains in Cairo museum. But the splendid golden death-mask that covered his features was prominently displayed at the Seattle show, together with much in gold, alabester, ivory, wood and precious or semi-precious gems that is wonderful and rare.

The object that Win and I remember for its wistful charm is a little gold-sheathed statue of the goddess Selket. She has a notably kind face, and a benevolent power to heal the bite of the scorpion.

With a distinct feeling of dislocation, we removed ourselves from the Egypt of 3,000 years ago to Seattle on a sunny afternoon, with our bus standing by to take us home.

For us, it was the end of a good trip, but not for driver John and guide Doreen. They were scheduled to leave almost immediately with a tour group for Las Vegas.

For a moment, we almost wished we were going with them.

Big Buddy Volunteers Paying Off

You've heard of Big Brother and Big Sister. Meet Big Buddy.

He (or she) is the newest breed of volunteer social worker — one who tries to help adults in need, specifically parents who abuse their children.

Started in Calgary three years ago, the big buddy or family aide program is paying big dividends in the treatment of problem families.

Shirley Marcuse, co-ordinator of the child abuse clinic at Alberta Children's Hospital, says the idea is simple — using stable families to help those with problems.

In an interview, Marcuse, who was in town last week to attend the third annual meeting of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said the big buddy in no way replaces the therapist.

Volunteers are taken on in hopes they'll provide friendship and help an abusing parent with, say, shopping or budgeting, or teach the mother games to play with her children or give tips on preparing meals and running the home.

The program has had a maximum of 18 volunteers, including three men. They receive a nominal $2.50 an hour for their time. The federal health and welfare department picked up the tab for the first three years. Now the provincial government has taken over funding.

Marcuse stressed the importance of community involvement in tackling the problem of child abuse.

No one knows the extent of the problem. An American report estimated the incidence at 380 cases per million population each year. Marcuse said there are 240 known abused children in Alberta, but feels the number reflects only about a quarter of the actual cases.

She said the Calgary clinic is helping about 50 families a month, between six to eight of them new cases.

She said the problem is found everywhere in society but is most hidden in the middle and upper middle classes because, "people in those classes are not likely to be seen or known by public agencies."

Abusing parents were often abused as children themselves, she said. Many feel isolated, without friends or anyone to talk to. Often the parent is young and immature and didn't plan on having a family so soon in the first place. Drugs, alcohol or a criminal background are often associated with the problem.

Marcuse said society must shoulder part of the blame as it fosters feelings of isolationism.

"It's so easy to be anonymous, to be a small fish in a very big pond," she said. "People are made to feel alienated. Unemployment, inadequate housing, are not conducive to a settled or contented way of life. As so often happens the frustrations are taken out on the child."

Marcuse noted there is a legal requirement on all people to report even suspected cases of child neglect or abuse. Failure to do so could result in a heavy fine, according to the child care acts of every province in Canada. However, Marcuse knows of no instance of anyone being fined, let alone charged.

HBC's TAKEOVER OFFER VALUED AT $388M

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson's Bay Co. has offered shares and cash worth $388 million in a bid to take control of Simpsons Ltd., fifth largest among Canadian department store chains.

Hudson's Bay, which operates The Bay chain of department stores, released details of its offer today.

The company announced the takeover bid Friday in what was regarded as an attempt to prevent the proposed merger of Simpsons with Simpsons-Sears Ltd., in which Sears, Roebuck and Co. of Chicago owns 50 per cent.

The proposed merger of Simpsons with Simpsons-Sears would create an 84-chain store with estimated 1979 sales near the $3-billion mark.

In a statement today, Hudson's Bay said it will offer one ordinary share and either one preferred share and $22.50 cash or two preferred shares for each eight common shares of Simpsons.

It said that based on the closing price of Hudson's Bay shares Thursday, the offer places a value of $8.27 on each Simpsons share "and total value of Simpsons Ltd. of $388 million."

The preferred shares will be entitled to cumulative dividends at the annual rate of $1.80. These will be redeemable at any time after Dec. 31, 1983, on payment for each share of $22.50, plus an initial premium of $1, reducing at 20 cents a year thereafter.

Ney again Among Winners On Municipal Ballots

VANCOUVER (CP) — Colorful politicians Frank Ney and Ed McKitka were winners and losers as British Columbians elected mayors, councillors and school trustees in 136 communities.

Ney easily won a sixth term as mayor of the Vancouver Island hub city of Nanaimo which he has made famous with annual bathtub races in the summer and polar bear swims in winter.

McKitka, a former mayor of the sprawling Vancouver suburb of Surrey, was rebuffed in an attempt to get back on council as an alderman. He finished sixth in a race among 11 hopefuls for four council seats.

Ney came close to capturing 50 per cent of the vote as he whipped four challengers, including Pat Barron, who was taking his second crack at the chief magistrate's job.

Ney said he never went on the defensive during his campaign which attracted nearly a 55 per cent turnout as the real estate company president polled 6,498 votes.

Barron, a city businessman, received 3,526 votes and Alex Virostko, a former alderman who is retired, was third with 2,991. Merchant Ed Brewster and businessman Michael Sammon trailed with 91 and 35 votes, respectively.

In his victory speech, Ney forecast "a new plateau of economic strength" for the city, which is developing the Duke Point industrial park and port.

Nanaimo was one of the few cities in B.C. where the number of eligible voters dropped—by 3,023 to 27,137.

In Surrey, McKitka missed an aldermanic seat by 783 votes and was beaten by Bonnie Schrenk, who had many battles with him when he was mayor.

McKitka filed nomination papers after he and seven others were charged following a two-year RCMP investigation into allegations of land speculation in Surrey and Richmond, another Vancouver suburb.

The former mayor, who has been operating a carnival concession in the United States, faces 16 charges, including eight of breach of trust, four of demanding a benefit, one of fraud and one of theft over $200.

Incumbents Don Ross and Gary Watkins topped the Surrey aldermanic race, followed by Bob Bose and Ms. Schrenk. Voters, who managed a turnout of only 19 per cent, turned out incumbents Fred Beale and Jerry Huot.

In Prince George, Elmer Mercier led two other aldermen whose terms are expiring in the race for the mayor's chair vacated by Harold Moffat, who is retiring after nine years in office. He led Prince George through a boom period in the early 1970s and an amalgamation in 1975.

Mercier received 3,110 votes, Victor Litnosky 2,328 and Robert Martin 2,103 as the race generated a 30-per-cent turnout.

In Kelowna, leadership was a major issue as incumbent Mayor John Hindle was a well-beaten third in a race among five hopefuls won by Dale Hammill, an insurance broker.

Voter dissatisfaction came mainly from outlying areas, principally Rutland which amalgamated with Kelowna in 1973. However, six incumbent aldermen who sought re-election were returned along with two newcomers.

Hammill received 4,523 votes, Colin Day, a former alderman, polled 3,543 and Hindle got 3,390 votes. Mike Sukovieff and John Wallin both polled fewer than 300 votes.

In Kamloops, incumbent Mayor Mike Latta easily defeated businessman Francois Lambert 8,562 votes to 2,493 in a bid for a second term.

Council recently reported a $3.5 million surplus and voters seemed to favor incumbents' stand that the money should be retained for emergencies rather than be used to cut taxes.

In Courtenay, Tom Barnett, a former member of Parliament, easily retained his chief magistrate's job by defeating challenger Ken Forde 1,048 to 609.

Among other losing mayors were V. L. Welch who placed third in the Gold River race to M. A. Fiddick; Reg Taylor, who lost to Frank Fairclough in a three-way race in Sparwood, and Al Graham who was defeated by nearly 100 votes by Bob Low in Mackenzie.

A recount is likely in the district of Powell River where incumbents Catherine Wilcocks and Derek Francis won re-election but Douglas Clark and incumbent Patrick O'Neil tied for the final council seat.

There were few referendums on the ballots. Most of them dealt with recreation facilities which totalled $22.2 million across the province.

In Port McNeil, voters defeated a proposal to fluoridate the community's water supply by 311 to 178.

Two incumbent aldermen were defeated in the Fraser Valley community of Matsqui, which has seen three recent provincial government investigations into council matters.

Newcomer Peter Dueck, a businessman, topped the polls in the race for three aldermanic seats with 2,586 votes, followed by incumbent Henry Friesen with 1,656 and Simon Gibson, a marketing manager who received 1,601 votes.

Losers were incumbents Doug Taylor with 1,521, Jim McDonald with 1,324, followed by Eric Schidbauer with 836 and Alex Sommerville with 830.

Friesen, an independent trucker, and Sommerville, a retired Matsqui civic approving officer, are involved in the most recent controversy involving a subdivision not approved by council.

Taylor, a former mayor, called for the latest government investigation.

This was a so-called off year for municipal elections in B.C. as fewer than a quarter of the province's mayors were up for reelection.

There were mayoral contests in 19 communities. Voters were asked to decide which of the 978 candidates would occupy 557 mayoralty, aldermanic and school board seats.

The number of candidates fell far short of the record 1,335 who filed nomination papers last year.

Fifteen mayors — 10 of them incumbents — were elected by acclamation when nominations closed Oct. 30. Fifty-nine persons — 35 of them incumbents — were acclaimed.

Among mayors elected by acclamation were Ross Marks, former president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, who sought his seventh term at 100 Mile House. Marks was 100 Mile's first mayor when it became incorporated in 1965 and has been opposed only once since then.

Also unopposed was Mayor George Ferguson of Abbotsford, newly-elected president of the UBCM, who was named to a sixth term.

Muni Evers of New Westminster, another former UBCM president, was also returned as mayor as was Randolph Harding of Silverton, a former CCF MLA and NDP member of Parliament.

Aldermen will have to be appointed in at least three communities because there were not enough candidates to fill vacant seats.

DIVERSION DEFEATED

NELSON (CP) — Area residents voted overwhelmingly Saturday to oppose the proposed diversion of the Kootenay River. The issue was put to residents in a referendum in Saturday's civic election, and 2,688 said they opposed the diversion, while 149 said they thought the project should go ahead. The vote is not binding on Hydro or the provincial government. "It (the vote) is pretty self-evident," Mayor Mac McAdams said Sunday. "There is a strong feeling by the people here that the government must demonstrate that it runs B.C. Hydro, not that Hydro runs them."

The individual purchase limit for the new Series has been increased to $50,000. In addition, holders of "S24" and "SR" bonds may still reinvest all proceeds from their maturing bonds in the new Series.

Payroll/Monthly Savings Plans
For purchases on the Payroll Savings Plan and Monthly Savings Plan made on or before November 22, payment schedules will continue to be based on the original rate of 8.90%, even though all purchasers will get the new rate of 9½%.

After November 22
For bonds purchased for cash after November 22, accrued interest at the new rate of 9½% will be charged from November 1 to the end of the month of purchase. For instalment purchases made after November 22, payment schedules will be based on the new rate of 9½%.

Compound Interest Bond
With the new 9½% rate of return on the 1978/79 Series, a $100 Compound Interest Bond will now grow as follows:

Nov. 1	Value	Nov. 1	Value
1979	$109.50	1983	$157.42
1980	$119.90	1984	$172.38
1981	$131.29	1985	$188.76
1982	$143.77

Regular Interest Bond
Each $1,000 Regular Interest Bond will now provide an interest payment of $95.00 every year to maturity in 1985.

Don't miss out!

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Rising energy issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher Monday in active mid-afternoon trading.

Trading halts issued Friday continued in shares of Hudson's Bay Co., Simpsons Ltd. and Simpsons-Sears Ltd. for dissemination of a takeover bid by Hudson's Bay for Simpsons. The $388-million offer consists of one Hudson's Bay common share plus either two preferred shares or one preferred and $22.50 cash for each eight Simpsons shares.

Simpsons has said directors will meet Wednesday to consider the proposal, but that previously-announced merger plans with Simpsons-Sears are proceeding.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Aided by the recent improvement of the U.S. dollar in currency trading, the stock market surged ahead today with three times more issues gaining than losing in price.

The dollar hit its highest level against the Japanese yen since July in early Tokyo trading. It showed only moderate improvement, compared to Friday's rates, in many European centers. And analysts said the continued strength over recent days was helping to draw in additional foreign investors and assuage recession fears of domestic buyers.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today.

EASY DOES IT — and the last 350-ton rotor is lowered gently into position at the Kainji Power Station on the Niger River in Nigeria. The rotor is part of a 120-watt generator, the last of four such units to be put into place to more than double the capacity of the power station. The engineering design and construction supervision was handled by Montreal Engineering Company of Montreal.

DEBBIE SECOND IN BID FOR TITLE

VANCOUVER — Debbie Scott of Victoria finished second in the senior women's event Saturday at the Canadian cross-country championships.

Running over a 5,000-metre course, Scott crossed the finishing line 18 seconds behind the winner, Nancy Rooks of Ontario, who ran the route in 17 minutes, 16.4 seconds.

Butler covered the 12,000-metre course at Stanley Park in 36 minutes, 35.8 seconds.

Ian Clark of Ontario, won the junior men's title in the closest race of the day. He ran the 8,000-metre course in 24:48.1, just five seconds ahead of Ray Paulins of Vancouver.

The Ontario region squad won three of the five team titles, capturing the senior men's and senior women's titles and the junior men's crown.

Peggy Nelson, Theriault Lead

Victoria-area runners collected the individual titles, but perennial-power Hillside of West Vancouver won the team championship at the annual British Columbia high school cross-country championships here Saturday.

Tony Theriault of Claremont captured the boys' title by covering the 7,000-metre course in 22 minutes, 56 seconds. Blair Beaton of Hillside finished second while defending-champion Vince Harrison of Claremont placed a disappointing 11th.

Peggy Nelson of Dunsmuir won the girls' 3,000 metres to highlight a strong displa yby district entrants. Bonnie Hutton of Spectrum finished second and Karen Coutts of Belmont was fourth. Maeve Lydon and Rhonda McKenna, both of Claremont, were eighth and ninth, respectively, in the field of 175.

Hillside girls accumulated only 45 points under the reverse-order scoring system to set a meet points record. Hillside finished more than 100 points ahead of second-place Prince of Wales of Vancouver. Claremont was third while Victoria High and Belmont tied for fifth place.

Hillside's boys just edged Claremont, 105-112.

Leafs in Front

Esquimalt Maple Leafs, sparked by a 10-point effort from the line of Rob Coldwell, Ron Poole and Gerry Blanchette, regained first place in the South Island Big Six Hockey League by tripping Duncan Silver Park Blades 11-4 Sunday at Duncan Arena.

On Saturday, Western Homes Buckaroos grabbed temporary possession of the lead by beating Victoria Athletics 8-4 at Panorama Leisure Centre.

Coldwell scored twice and had three assists, Poole was two-and-two and Blanchette added a single goal for the high-flying Esquimalt line.

Esquimalt now leads with 23 points, one more than Bucks, who have a game in hand. Following in order are Athletics (18 points), Duncan (5) and Juan de Fuca Gulls (4).

Close Battles

University of Victoria Vikettes couldn't have cut it much finer Sunday before posting victories over Simon Fraser University in an exhibition intercollegiate women's volleyball doubleheader at the McKinnon Building.

Vikettes won the first game by the close scores of 15-13, 15-11, 16-14 and then had to go the full distance to post a 7-15, 4-15, 15-8, 15-6, 15-5 victory in the second best-of-five encounter.

The exhibition served as a warmup for Vikettes, who travel to Edmonton on Friday for the first of three round-robin tournaments making up the Canada West University Athletic Association championship.

Alberni Nipped in Overtime As Wildcats Retain Crown

NANAIMO — Burnaby Central Wildcats retained the British Columbia high school soccer championship Saturday by edging Alberni District 2-1 in the second overtime period of the battle for the tournament title.

A goal by Mike Zacharuk at the five-minute mark of the second overtime session gave Burnaby Central the victory and capped a five-game unbeaten streak in the tourney that started Thursday. Zacharuk scored the winning goal in four of the victories.

Mt. Douglas Thistles of Victoria took third place by scoring four goals in overtime to defeat Nanaimo, 6-2.

In the championship game, Alberni took a 1-0 lead on a first-half goal by Dan Bamfield.

Wildcats came back in the second half, seemingly inspired when their goaltender Jeff Slark suffered a fractured cheekbone in a collision and was taken to hospital. Burnaby tied the score on a header by Mark Steen only a minute after Scott Errington had come on to tend the Burnaby net.

In the game for third place, Mt. Douglas took advantage of a Nanaimo collapse in overtime to win. The game was tied 1-1 at the half and 2-2 at the end of the 90-minute game, part of which was played in snow flurries.

Rob Wallace and Dennis Mamic each scored twice for the winners while Russ Rimmer and Rich Stebeck added singles. Perry Logan scored both Nanaimo goals.

Richmond took fifth place by beating Carson Graham 4-1, Centennial finished seventh with a 5-0 win over Vernon, McNair took ninth with a 4-1 win over Princess Margaret.

Prince Rupert came 11th with a 6-3 over Victoria High Tyees, North Kamloops beat Kimberley 3-2 to finish 13th and Sardis finished 15th by beating Prince George, 6-0.

Slark, Al Fabbro and Roy Schmidt of Burnaby Central were named to the all-star team along with Wallace of Mt. Douglas, Paul Pynn of Vic High, Alex Barnetson of Centennial, Doug Long of Richmond, Greg Nelson of Nanaimo, Brian Champagne of Princess Margaret, Greg Heywood of Carson Graham and Oliver Easton of North Kamloops.

Victoria Rowers Capture Honors

SEATTLE — Victoria rowers took home a major share of the awards at the annual Green Lake Frostbite Regatta for women near here Saturday.

University of Victoria competitors collected three firsts and three seconds while Victoria City Rowing Club members won two other events in the 16-team meet that attracted entries from throughout the Pacific Northwest.

UVic won the junior varsity fours as well as the novice lightweight fours and eights.

Oregon State College of Corvallis beat UVic in the varsity fours and eights while the University of British Columbia topped UVic in the novice heavyweight eights.

Janice Mason and Lisa Roy of VCRC won the open doubles. Mason won the open singles and Roy was runner-up.

Eskimos, Alouettes in Grey Cup Final

Pride, Poise And Money

EDMONTON (CP) — Tom Wilkinson and Tom Scott believe pride, poise and money were the forces that drove Edmonton Eskimos to a 26-13 victory over Calgary Stampeders in Saturday's Canadian Football League's western conference final.

Assessing the first-ever all-Alberta WFC final in a surprisingly-quiet dressing room, both said the poise that comes from experience allowed the Eskimos to come from behind for their fifth triumph in six successive appearances.

Edmonton will meet Montreal Alouettes in next Sunday's Grey Cup game at Toronto.

On Saturday, the Eskimos gave up what coach Hugh Campbell described as a free go-ahead touchdown in the second quarter when Calgary's Ray Odums ran 50 yards with a pass interception.

But they didn't panic. Experience helped the Eskimos maintain their cool, Wilkinson said. They had 13 players in the lineup who had seen action in the previous four finals and learned how to cope with the ups-and-downs that occur in a playoff encounter on a bitterly-cold November day.

"We knew that we couldn't make that big mistake again," Wilkinson said. It was a situation in which the club "just had to keep going" rather than employ desperation tactics in a bid to catch up.

The Eskimos kept coming and finally the Stampeder defence, which performed well through the first three quarters of the game, cracked under the strain. It committed three infractions resulting in a costly 28 yards in penalties, making it easy for the Eskimos to march 66 yards for the fourth-quarter touchdown that put Edmonton ahead for good.

Scott said the extra money that is part of the playoff picture was a motivating factor for Edmonton, but added: "This team has a lot of pride and something to prove."

Wingback Scott was referring to the Eskimos' determination to make amends for last year's Grey Cup disaster on the ice-pocked artificial turf in Montreal's Olympic Stadium.

Campbell said the tide turned when Edmonton stopped the Calgary running game—an often potent weapon based on 1,000-yard men James Sykes and Willie Burden.

"When we stopped the run and they had to throw, the turnovers started," Campbell said. They came thick and fast in the final stages of the fourth quarter in the form of interceptions, fumbles and unsuccessful third-down gambles that led to three Dave Cutler field goals.

Coach Jack Gotta sought solace in the fact that Calgary made it as far as they did—to the club's first playoff appearance since 1971.

"It's very disheartening thing to lose at anytime . . . but when you get down to the last game . . . I think we'll come back next year."

Gotta said the frozen Commonwealth Stadium field and an ailing quarterback hurt Calgary. John Hufnagel's injured thumb hampered his throwing and the only strictly offensive points the Stampeders could produce came on a field goal by Cyril McFall, who also converted Odums's touchdown.

McFall's other field goal, in the third quarter, was set up when Odums recovered a fumble.

Charging for Yardage Past Ottawa Tacklers Is Montreal's David Green (26)

Defence Was Brutal

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal Alouettes outclawed and outfought Ottawa Rough Riders for a 21-16 victory in the Canadian Football League's eastern conference final Sunday and a berth in the Grey Cup game.

The Alouettes face Edmonton Eskimos next Sunday in a rematch for the national championship. Montreal bombed Edmonton 41-6 to win the title last year.

The Alouettes, losers in three of four regular season games against Ottawa, relied on a brutal defence, a timely offence and the inconsistency of Ottawa kicker J. T. Hay.

"They just outfought us," dejected Ottawa coach George Brancato said following the game.

Quarterback Joe Barnes scored touchdowns on 10 and one-yard runs, kicker Don Sweet added two converts, field goals of 33 and 27 yards and a 39-yard single off a missed field goal.

Barnes moved the Alouettes on two long scoring drives in the second half that effectively killed off the clock.

The first was an 11-play third quarter drive that began on the Montreal eight yard line and ended with a Sweet field goal. In the fourth quarter the Als moved 67 yards in nine plays with Barnes finally scoring a touchdown.

Richard Holmes scored early for the Riders on a two-yard run and Mike Murphy added another on a three-yard plunge with 31 seconds left in the game. Hay converted once and added singles on three of four missed field goals.

The Montreal defence held Ottawa rushers to a meagre 53 yards rushing and recovered the games' only turnover that led to an important second-quarter touchdown.

Barnes passed over the middle to Larry Smith for 33 yards and after several running plays finally ran over himself from the one-yard line.

The Als were given a boost in the first half when Hay, in the throes of a six-game slump, missed field goals of 40, 50 and 42 yards, allowing Montreal to escape with an 11-9 lead.

The Alouettes appeared sluggish throughout the first half rushing for only 38 yards. Running back David Green had 10 yards on four carries and John O'Leary had 15 yards on five carries.

But in the second half, Montreal made a major adjustment and their rushing game went into high gear.

"We started running to the outside," said offensive tackle Dan Yochum. "That took away the blitz and helped open it up the middle for O'Leary."

Green rushed for 43 yards in the second half while O'Leary picked up 50.

Holmes had 25 yards on the ground and Murphy ran for 17 yards.

Barnes went all the way for Montreal completing nine of 13 passes for 144 yards. Tom Clements of Ottawa completed 23 of 34 for 294 yards.

Montreal coach Joe Scanella tried to insert backup quarterback Sonny Wade into the game but he refused, saying that Barnes was doing fine.

Brawl Marks Buffalo Win

By The Canadian Press

Things appeared to be running smoothly Sunday night with Buffalo Sabres entertaining Minnesota North Stars.

The Sabres took a 1-0 lead in the first period of their National Hockey League game on a goal by Gilbert Perreault and the only penalty called by referee Bryan Lewis came with 4:45 left in the period.

The peace didn't last much longer.

After Buffalo increased its lead to 3-1 and gained a 5-3 manpower advantage through penalties late in the second period, everything broke loose.

Sabres centre Don Luce said he was camped to the side of North Stars goaltender Gary Edwards "when somebody swung around and knocked me in the stomach with his stick.

"Then the goalie hit me on the head with his stick. If I hadn't been wearing a helmet, I would really have gotten hurt."

That was his version. There was a differing view from the North Stars' dressing room.

"Our guys said somebody from their team speared the goaltender," said coach Glen Sonmor after just his second game behind the bench following the resignation of Harry Howell.

Whatever happened, it ignited a bench-clearing brawl with 4:43 left in the second period of what turned out to be a 9-2 Buffalo rout. When the smoke cleared, Edwards and four other North Stars had been ejected—as had Danny Gare and Ric Seiling of the Sabres.

In quieter encounters elsewhere, Atlanta Flames bested New York Rangers 3-1 in a battle of the NHL's top two clubs, Philadelphia Flyers edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3 and Boston Bruins beat St. Louis Blues 5-2.

On Saturday, the Rangers blasted the North Stars 7-2, New York Islanders whipped Philadelphia 8-2, Montreal Canadiens downed Vancouver Canucks 4-2, Colorado Rockies surprised Chicago Black Hawks 8-3, while Pittsburgh Penguins beat Los Angeles Kings, Detroit bested Buffalo and Toronto Maple Leafs upended the Blues by identical 3-1 scores.

The Sabres are unbeaten in their last eight .

On Saturday at Vancouver, the Canucks, through some acrobatic goalkeeping by Glen Hanlon, managed to stay close to the Canadiens until the final minute when Rejean Houle scored the clinching goal.

Bobby MacMillan set up third-period goals 5½ minutes apart by linemates Guy Chouinard and Eric Vail as Atlanta continued its mastery over New York. The Flames have lost just one of the last 17 games between the teams.

RAIDERS CRUSH HORNETS

A bigger and more experienced Richmond Raider team, controlling play most of the way, defeated Victoria Hornets 44-1 at Royal Athletic Park to capture the British Columbia juvenile football title Sunday.

Raiders, whose average age is almost two years more than that of the Vancouver Island champions, led 14-0 at the half and then rolled for 30 points in the second half.

Wes Lavallee was the big point-producer for Raiders, scoring 14 points on a touchdown, six converts and two singles.

Geordie Out Again But Cats Take Two

But for Geordie Robertson, it could have been a happy weekend for Victoria Cougars.

The Western Hockey League team claimed a pair of tight, one-goal decisions to move back into first place in the tough Western Division. They did it with some superb goaltending and, for most of the way, without their captain.

Robertson, who returned to action only recently after suffering an injury to his right knee, went out again Saturday as the Cougars edged Seattle Breakers 2-1. This time, Robertson's left knee absorbed a knock.

The extent of Robertson's injury won't be known until a thorough examination today. Dan Buie, the club doctor, wanted some of the swelling to subside before examining the knee.

"It could be a week," was his initial report. "Or it could be several weeks."

If it is strained or bruised ligaments, the high-scoring centre could be back in a hurry. If it's a more serious cartilege injury, Robertson could be out of action for several weeks.

Robertson's injury was a major concern to coach Jack Shupe.

Otherwise, it was a grand weekend. Saturday's victory over Seattle and Sunday's 3-2 victory over the Bruins in New Westminster, combined with the Breakers' 3-2 conquest of Portland Winter Hawks, enabled the Cougars to reclaim first.

The position is nice but the ultra delight, in Shupe's opinion, was the play of his netminders. Kevin Eastman was Saturday's sparkler, allowing Seattle only a goal by Joe Ward, while Amiss took care of things Sunday.

In the process, both lowered their goals-against average to under four per game. After the weekend, Eastman is 3.95 while the redheaded Amiss is 3.96.

The figures impress Shupe, who remembeps "we never got under the 4.00 mark last year. The goaltending we received at the weekend is the kind that could really turn this club on."

Amiss shared Sunday's spotlight with the team's penalty-killers. Victoria penalty-killing was outstanding. Cougars drew eight of the game's 12 minors, including a double minor to Todd Morton in the second period. The Cougars skated off all the disadvantages except one.

Ahead 3-0 after two periods, John Ogrodnick broke Amiss' spell while Torrie Robertson was serving a hooking penalty. Bill Hobbins made it 3-2 74 seconds later but Amiss then closed the door again for the remaining 14 minutes to deal New Westminster its second straight home-ice loss.

It was olly the second time in three years that the Cougars, now with a 5-10-1 won-loss-tied record on the road, have won a game in Queen's Park Arena.

Beating The Clock Name of The Game

The Associated Press

The great equalizer for all National Football League teams is the game clock. It is emotionless and uncompromising—a friend one moment, an enemy the next.

It often spells the difference between victory and defeat and, in four games Sunday, the outcome rested on its steady tick-tock as the seconds ebbed away.

For New York Giants, the clock seemed to be tolling victory as they ran it out, protecting a 17-12 lead over Philadelphia Eagles. Suddenly, with just 20 ticks left, Joe Pisarcik fumbled and Herman Edwards scooped the ball up and ran 26 yards for Philadelphia's winning touchdown in a 19-17 victory.

New York Jets had raced the clock as they rushed downfield in the final two minutes, positioning the ball for a Pat Leahy field goal that could have turned the tide in their game against New England. With 31 seconds left, Leahy lined up for a 33-yard kick. But it hooked wide to the left, saving the Patriots' 19-17 victory.

For Kansas City Chiefs, the clock wasn't as vital as the position of the ball. There were just 15 seconds left when the Chiefs, trailing 13-10 against Seattle Seahawks, lined up at the one-yard line. Only a miracle could save the Seahawks, it seemed. A miracle or a fumble. Tony Green supplied the latter and the Chiefs came up losers again.

In San Francisco, the '49ers played their best game of the season and with two seconds left to play, were tied with powerful Los Angeles. Overtime loomed, but then Frank Corrall delivered a 24-yard field goal that sealed a 31-28 Rams victory.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Washington 27-17, dropping the Redskins into a first-place tie in the NFC East with Dallas Cowboys, 27-7 victors over New Orleans Saints. San Diego Chargers topped Minnesota 13-7, but the Vikings remained tied for the NFC Central lead with Green Bay Packers, who bowed 16-3 to Denver. The Broncos' victory kept them in a first-place deadlock with Oakland in the AFC Wes—the Raiders whipping Detroit Lions 29-17.

In other games, Tampa Bay Buccaneers whipped Buffalo Bills 31-10, Chicago Bears regained their winning form with a 13-7 victory over Atlanta Falcons, Cleveland Browns blasted Baltimore Colts 45-24 and Pittsburgh Steelers eeked out a 7-6 win over Cincinnati Bengals.

Miami Dolphins play the Oilers in Houston tonight.

St. Louis recorded its fourth consecutive victory after losing its first eight games. Jim Hart flipped two TD passes and Willard Harrell returned a punt 70 yards for another score.

Tony Dorsett rushed for 152 yards, pushing his season's total past the 1,000-yard plateau as Dallas set the stage for their Thanksgiving Day showdown with Washington.

Mark van Eeghen scored three TDs, two on one-yard runs and the third on a fumble recovery in the end zone, as Oakland hung onto its share of the AFC West lead. Van Eeghen rushed for 98 yards in the game and scored the go-ahead TD when he fell on wide receiver Cliff Branch's fumble in the end zone.

DataTech Newcomers Continue to Add Sock

VANCOUVER — Victoria DataTech is off to a flying start thanks largely to the contributions of newcomers Varick Cutler and Billy Loos.

The American pair led the scoring on the weekend as DataTech boosted its preseason record to 5-1 by sweeping a senior "A" men's exhibition basketball doubleheader from Gary Taylor's Discotheque of the Vancouver Dogwood League.

The six-foot-eight Cutler was spectacular Saturday as DataTech crushed Taylor's 126-88 and Loos hit for a personal season high of 30 points Sunday as DataTech won 103-94.

Cutler grabbed an astounding 26 rebounds in the openingromp and he slammed home a DataTech season high 36 points. He had a little trouble getting started Sunday and missed numerous close-in shots in the first half but wound up shooting 57 per cent on the game and was second in team scoring with 23 points.

Loos also had his troubles inside Sunday but he shot well from outside and scored four crucial points that ignited a game-clinching drive in the final minute.

Dave Mulcahy was outstanding in the first half of both games but fouled out in the second half both times.

The big forward teamed with Cutler and Mike Gains to control the boards with aggressive rebounding and he scored 20 points in the first half of Sunday's game when the rest of the club was shooting poorly.

Bob Burrows came off the bench to score 19 points Saturday and Sunday he scored all of his 10 points in the final four minutes.

The Technicians, missing, Brian MacKenzie, Brent Mullins (holidays) Jim Duddridge (honeymoon) and UVic Viking coach Ken Shields, had their best shooting game (59 per cent) Saturday but shot only 43 per cent Sunday.

MacKenzie, out of the lineup for two weeks with a knee injury, is expected back for a doubleheader this weekend with Vancouver Puccinis. Games are 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday at Central Junior High School.

VICTORIA (103) — Bob Burrows 10, Dave Morgan 8, Billy Loos 30, Mike Gains 6, Varick Cutler 23, Chris Hall 4, Dave Mulcahy 22.

VANCOUVER (94) — Brent Watson 14, Barry Mosely 7, Larry Street 25, Al Selkel 14, Tom Narbeshuder 8, Randy Clark 12, Don Schmidt 14.

VICTORIA (126) — Burrows 19, Tom Sinnott 2, Morgan 16, Loos 22, Gains 12, Hall 5, Mulcahy 14.

VANCOUVER (88) — Watson 16, Bill Ruby 12, Mosely 4, Street 16, Selkel 8, Narbeshuder 13, Schmidt 17, Stu Graham 2.

Six for Proceviat

MILL BAY — Esquimalt Legion Blues tightened a grasp on third place in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League by mauling Kerry Park Islanders 16-5 Saturday.

Scoring leader Wayne Proceviat boosted his goal total to 41 in 16 games by firing six tallies for Esquimalt. Murray Allen added four.

Doug Jordan scored three goals to lead Islanders, who have received permission from both the league and B.C. Amateur Hockey Association to turn intermediate and add five "overage" players to their lineup.

Cowichan Falls To James Bay

James Bay Athletic Association rambled to a 23-3 decision over Cowichan in first-division Vancouver Island Rugby Union play Sunday at Macdonald Park.

On Saturday, Oak Bay Wanderers blanked UVic Vikings 10-0 at Windsor Park and Castaways tripped Velox 17-12 at Carnarvon Park.

Barry Robbins kicked a penalty goal and two conversions for James Bay while single tries were counted by Chuck Shergold, Mike Blades, K.C. Walt and Murray Allen.

Another kicker, John Norris, set the pace for Castaways with three penalty goals while Larry Chung and Jan Lees added tries. Dave De Frane and Gord Lister scored tries for Velox and Bill Turner booted both conversions.

In second-division play, Cowichan downed Castaways 20-8 and Vampires dropped Velox, 7-0.

SECON DIVISION

COWICHAN (20) — Larry Thibadeau two tries, Don Jackson try, Norm Thorne try and two conversions; CASTAWAYS (8) — Dave Wasylenko, two tries.

VAMPIRES (7) — Ross Dawson try, Jim Bainas penalty goal; VELOX (0).

THIRD DIVISION

Pakistan Wins Test

KARACHI (AFP) — Pakistan scored an exciting eight-wicket victory over touring India in the third and final cricket test on Sunday, winning the series 2-0.

After dismissing India for 300 five minutes before tea interval, the home team reeled off the required runs with seven balls of 20 mandatory overs to spare.

Javed Miandad, who hit the winning shot for Pakistan, was declared Man of the Match and Sunil Gavaskar and Zaheer Abbas shared the Man of the Series award.

EDGES YARBOROUGH; PETTY GOES WINLESS FOR YEAR

Allison Scores Close Win in Times 500

ONTARIO, Calif. — Bobby Allison picked up a "Darlington stripe" 20 miles from the finish but still had enough zip left to pull away from Cale Yarborough for a 1.78-second victory in Sunday's $185,000 Los Angeles Times 500, the final race of the Grand National stock car season.

Roy Smith of Victoria was doomed to disappointment after losing a gamble and failing to qualify for the race Saturday.

Smith had qualified in 30th spot with a 147 m.p.h. clocking in his 1977 "Tropical Rent-a-Car Chevelle on Friday and decided to try and improve his starting position Saturday morning. Unfortunately, he could only manage 144 m.p.h. and missed the starting field of 40 cars.

Later in the day, mechanical problems with the 1977 Camaro owned by Bob Beadle of Seattle forced Smith to miss the running of the preliminary American 150.

Allison scraped the wall as he exited turn four in the lead on the 191st of 200 laps around Ontario Motor Speedway. The contact only put put a stripe — so named for the treacherous Darlington, S.C., Raceway — along the side of his Thunderbird.

Yarborough used the bobble to close the margin between him and the leader, and their two cars were either nose-to-tail or side-by-side until Allison pulled away deftly through traffic on the next to last lap.

"Cale gave us a little bit of a heart attack late in the race," Allison noted. "His car has a lot of engine and he drives real hard."

Allison, who averaged 137.783 miles an hour, became the first two-time winner of the Times 500.

Allison's finish propelled him from fifth in the season's Winston Cup point standings to second, worth about $10,000. Allison also collected about $22,000 from the purse.

The race also meant a little more than just defeat for five veterans.

Richard Petty, the sport's all-time top winner, and Baker, Neil Bonnett, Dave Marcis and Ricky Rudd all had something in common heading into the race — they were all non-winners in 1978.

Perhaps more important than the purse they all missed is the money needed to do business — sponsor money. More than any other sport, sponsor backing is essential, and that means victories.

Even a driver like Petty, with 185 career victories — David Pearson is next at 103 wins — is not immune from the requirements of regular victory production. In fact, Petty knows this as well as anyone.

The 41-year-old Petty has gone winless since July 4, 1977. In the search for the winning combination, Petty has switched from Dodge to Chevrolet, and lost factory support and an estimated $750,000 in assorted promotional contracts from Chrysler Corp.

Now his $400,000 yearly support from STP Corp., a staple in Petty's diet most of this decade, appears to be fading away.

Petty's bankroll next year may be more than $1.25 million lighter.

The others face less expensive, although as proportionately staggering, consequences. Marcis is out of a job for 1979. Baker is switching cars. Bonnett, Brooks and Rudd all figure to be doing something different next season, although they don't know what yet.

United Tied With Royals

Nanaimo United moved into a share of third place with Cosmopolitan Royals in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League by blanking Duncan Selects 3-0 Sunday in Nanaimo.

In other matches, Nanaimo City helped its cross-town rivals by defeating Cosmo Royals 2-1 at Heywood Avenue Park, UVic Vikings nipped Oak Bay 1-0 at Topaz Park and Powell River Villas downed Gorge 3-1 in Powell River.

Rick Sage led Nanaimo United to victory with two goals in the second half after Ray Telford had given the home team a 1-0 lead at the break.

Don Attig scored the winning goal for Nanaimo City with about six minutes to play. Ray Clarke scored the other City goal and Chris Bridgeman countered for Royals after the teams played to a scoreless deadlock in the first half.

Chris Leach scored twice to give Powell River a 2-1 lead at half time and Phil Galigos counted the insurance goal. Howie Kirk replied for Gorge.

Several weekend matches were postponed because of weather conditions.

Vikings Have Strong Hand Despite Absence of Aces

Different circumstances are keeping Billy Loos and Craig Higgins out of the lineup but the University of Victoria Vikings are "managing" without the starry pair.

Vikings boosted their Canada West University Athletic Association basketball record to 4-0 by thumping Saskatchewan 103-67 at McKinnon Gym Saturday to complete a two-game sweep over the Huskies.

They did it with speed, good shooting and balance — even without Loos and Higgins.

Loos, last year's scoring champion, is saving a year of eligibility (he hopes to return next year) by playing with the senior "A" Victoria DataTech. Higgins, the guard who came out of Oak Bay to sparkle in his freshman year last season, is sidelined with knee problems.

Their absence is not news now. The thing that is noteworthy, however, is the balance that still remains with the Vikings.

Guard Robbie Parris, freshman Gerald Kazanowski, Ian Hyde-Lay and big Reni Dolcetti all scored in the double figures as the fast-break tactics of the Vikings worked most effectively against Saskatchewan. There was strength, too, under the defensive backboards and the overall display pleased UVic coach Ken Shields.

"We're not out of the woods yet," he said, "but tonight we played more like we're capable of doing."

Also 4-0, Vikettes ran their winning streak in the women's conference to a 64th straight game by tripping Saskatchewan's girls 74-62.

And, again, it was Jane Favali who sparked Vikettes. Favali, obviously succeeding Carol Turney as UVic's scoring sparkplug, dropped in 25 points to boost her individual total to 84 in four games.

Like Loos, Turney was the CWUAA women's scoring champion last season and plans to complete her scholastic eligiblity next year.

Huskiettes, sparked by Nancy Brentnell's 25 points, came up with a much-improved perormance over Friday (when UVic won 80-44) but couldn't match Victoria's balance.

Freshman Tracy McAra and Michelle Belanger each added 13 points to Victoria's total while Luanne Hebb contributed nine.

Both UVic teams have won their four games at home. They will take their first road tests next weekend in Lethbridge.

Pat Rooney scored 27 points and Jim Bonin had 20 to lead Alberta's Golden Bears to 96-91 victory over the Pronghorns in Lethbridge. The victory gave the Golden Bears a split in their weekend series with Lethbirdge after losing Friday night's game. Both teams now have 3-1 records in league play.

In women's play, Alberta Pandas also recovered from a Friday night loss to defeat Lethbridge 64-49. Faith Rostad scored 17 for the winners while Trix Kannekens and Janet Vosscha added 16 each. Donna Hanna had 19 points to top the Lethbridge attack.

At Calgary, both of the host teams defeated their counterparts from the University of British Columbia.

UBC's top scorer was Brad Findlay with 24 while John Doughty had 18 and Frank Janowicz picked up 17.

Calgary's girls defeated the Thunderettes 68-52.

MERCEDES-BENZ does not normally offer their fine cars at special prices. So this is truly an exceptional opportunity.

At this moment, your local Mercedes-Benz dealer has a list of executive-driven company and staff cars which are for sale at special prices—effective immediately.

These are 1978 and 1979 models in immaculate condition. All are low in mileage and carry the balance of our comprehensive 24 month or 40,000 kilometer factory warranty.

So if you have ever considered owning a Mercedes-Benz, long acclaimed as "one of the world's finest automobiles", then now is the time to act.

See your local dealer. Remember, he has a complete description of all the company cars available for immediate delivery.

But act quickly. We fully expect these fine cars to be sold in a very short time. After all, this is a rare event.

Mercedes-Benz

Independent Title To St. Michael's

St. Michael's University School of Victoria blanked St. George's of Vancouver 15-0 Saturday to capture the provincial independent schools rugby championship.

In preliminary games, St. George's second team won 7-0 and the school's third squad scored a 20-16 victory. SMU captured an under-16 contest 10-8 and a clash between fourth teams ended in a 4-4 deadlock.

STOP Smoking For Life

Announcing R.E.S.T.

A New easy method developed and proven by University Research

Now you can end your smoking habit permanently with a simple, pleasant method that works for most smokers in just 24 hours. R.E.S.T. (Reduced Environmental Stimulation Technique) has been clinically proven to be effective for 75% to 95% of smokers. 10 years of scientific research at 4 distinguished universities and published clinical reports show it works even for heavy smokers. Even if you've tried to quit before, R.E.S.T. can work for you — quickly, easily, comfortably — and for life.

HOW IT WORKS

R.E.S.T. reduces tension and your desire for cigarettes, replacing smoking naturally, without drugs, hypnosis, shocks or discomfort. You can stop smoking without weight gain. And save the money you've been smoking away. Results of the personalized, professionally supervised program are guaranteed.

HOW TO STOP SMOKING NOW

If you wish to stop smoking, or if your doctor has told you to quit, learn about R.E.S.T. Just phone for information or to arrange a cost-free private appointment at the EXECUTIVE HOUSE HOTEL. Phone now, before you take another smoke.

Nicklaus Repeats

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — Jack Nicklaus easily won the $253,000 Australian Open golf championship on Sunday after dominating the field from the second round.

The American golfer won his sixth Australian Open title, defying wind and rain that suspended play for more than an hour to shoot a one-under-par 71 for a four-round total of 284, six strokes ahead of American Ben Crenshaw.

Victory was worth $50,600.

Crenshaw finished the round with a one-over-par 73 and a 290 total, winning second prize of $28,750.

Canadian Open champion Bruce Lietzke had a final-round 76 and a 293 total for $17,825. Lietzke had been tied with Crenshaw in second place going into the final round.

The final-round score of Canadians John Morgan, 73-71-81 — 225 in the first three rounds, and Bob Beauchemin, both of Victoria, were not available.

Although he earlier had set a course record of 66, Nicklaus said he had played better on Sunday than on any other day in the tournament.

The turning point in Nicklaus' final round came after the troublesome first two holes when he holed a bunker shot at the third for his first birdie of the day.

"Up to that point I hadn't been settled," he said. "All of a sudden I was totally settled.".

SASKATOON CAPTURES JUNIOR CROWN

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatoon Hilltops received an 18-point performance from Reg Boudreau and combined it with a powerful defence to defeat the Ottawa Sooners 24-4 in a Canadian junior football final Sunday.

Hilltops had a 14-4 half-time lead but never allowed the Sooners to get closer. Saskatoon's defence continually thwarted Ottawa drives in the third quarter.

Boudreau clinched the game with a one-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter. He also added three field goals, two converts and a pair of single on wide goals. Derek Harnish rounded out Saskatoon scoring with a first-quarter touchdown reception from quarterback Ron Morris.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

South's bidding in today's deal will not meet with the approval of most bridge players. In justification of his calls, it should be mentioned that the deal was played in the 1976 Open Pair Championship, and South felt that he needed a good score to have a chance of winning this duplicate event. So he bid abnormally, hoping to create a "swing." As will be observed, he succeeded.

North-South vulnerable.
West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	5 ♡
Pass	Pass	5 ♠	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Dble.	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Certainly South's failure to overcall at his first opportunity to bid is incomprehensible. West's raise to two spades was just as incredible as South's original pass. East, counting on West for 6-9 points, promptly barged into the game at spades. Now South leaped out of the bushes with a five-heart call.

When the bidding reverted to East, he felt that (1) he might not be able to beat five hearts (he was right); and (2) that five spades was a makable contract (he was wrong). So East bid five spades.

South evidently had a hunch that East would fulfill his contract. So, despite the fact that he was vulnerable, he made the sacrifice bid of six hearts. East doubled this contract.

West's opening spade lead was taken by East's ace, and at trick two East shifted to the club king, South's ace winning. The trump ace was then cashed, revealing the fact that West had been dealt the two outstanding trumps.

Leaving West's nine of trumps outstanding, declarer next led a diamond to dummy's ace, after which a diamond was ruffed with South's king of trumps. Next came the five of trumps to dummy's 10, and a third diamond lead was ruffed with South's queen of trumps. Dummy was then entered with the preserved three of trumps to dummy's four, and on the high jack of diamonds and queen of spades South discarded his two losing clubs. Thus South's only loser was a spade trick to East's ace.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, November 21

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES(March 21-April 19): Accent on locating opening, escape hatch, outlet for creative energies. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo figure prominently — and so does number 4. One who is specific is an ally. One who equivocates is attempting to get something for nothing — from you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): See situation in light of reality; avoid self-deception. Be analytical, practical and insist on a fair deal. Those who tell you to work for ideals, not cash, are only too willing to spend your time, energy, assets. Please — know when to draw the line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on beauty, exchange of ideas and gifts. Home could be remodeled, residence could change, family member makes diplomatic gesture. Ride with tide; be receptive. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on costs, production time, basic assets, realistic appraisals. Count your change! Be positive concerning contracts, agreements. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently — so does the number 7. Define terms — be sure you are not quoted out of context.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): You get chance to vindicate, to prove an important point. Cycle high — judgment, intuition are likely to be on target. Accent personality, showmanship, powers of persuasion. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario. Imprint style, be direct and confident.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Streamline procedures — finish what you start. Look behind the scenes. Be discreet — don't reveal all you know. Let others do the talking. File data, information. You learn secrets and gain access to confidential material.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on how to make wishes come true. Yes, romance is part of scenario. You'll get to heart of matters concerning affair of heart. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently — and so does the number 1. Fresh contact aids ultimate cause.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You regain sense of direction. Your intuition works overtime. Individual who aided, taught you in the past is back in picture. Aquarius figures prominently — and so does the number 11. Superior is impressed with you and will say so.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expand, diversify, distribute; publicize, advertise and promote. Elements of luck, timing are with you. Gemini figures prominently. Accent on communication, travel, special publications. You can gain "spiritual insights."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check clauses, lease, rental or purchase arrangements. Partner, mate figures in scenario — question of cash flow could dominate. Scorpio, Leo persons "have their say." Be thorough, take nothing for granted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Analyze written material, especially contracts legal documents. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. Yes, there will be a change — it will benefit you. Accent on public ralations, publicity — and marital status.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Go slow, examine various angles, possibilities. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. Domestic adjustment is on agenda. Harmony can be restored. Key is to make creative, intelligent concessions without abandoning principles.

IF NOVEMBER 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you adore comedy, travel and food. You are gracious, spiritual and a natural entertainer and "healer." Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You move, redecorate, fix things connected with residence next month. You are more conscious of weight, physical appearance than the average person. You will be on more solid ground in 1979 — April could be a money month.

FUN WITH FIGURES

Tommy was playing on the rug when his uncle came in. "What a lot of marbles," Don commented. "But only greens, blues, and reds."

"That's right," the boy replied. "A quarter of them are red, a third are green, and there are 25 blues."

How many in all?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: The length of the third side, 63 kangs.

Canadians Shatter American Win Skein

TORONTO (CP) — Capt. Con Power of Ireland won the final competition at the Royal Horse Show on Saturday, but a second-place finish by Torchy Millar was all that was needed to give the Canadian equestrian team its first victory over the United States in 10 years on the North American Fall circuit.

Americans had won the team title here the past eight years. However they fell short when the show's leading rider, Dennis Murphy, knocked down a rail in the jumpoff for the McKee International Trophy and had to settle for third place.

For Power, the victory was particularly sweet. Riding Rockbarton, he was only one of two riders to go clean in the jumpoff and took the last event at the Royal in 35.1 seconds.

That victory gave him the over-all title in the North American fall circuit, which started more than a month ago in Washington.

His 10 points Saturday night gave Power 95 for the circuit, five ahead of Murphy who had his chance but fell one fence short of his goal.

Torchy Millar, the only other clean rider on Eaden Vale, finished second Saturday in 35.9 seconds. Murphy, aboard Tuscaloosa, was third with four faults, ahead of Toronto's Terry Leibel on Merchant of Venice.

Over-all, Canada celebrated a magnificent team victory, its first since 1968, by scoring 133 points in 14 international events of the 10-day show.

SWISS GIRL EARNS TULIP OF HER OWN

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — Denise Biellmann of Switzerland won the women's individual event at the international Ennia Challenge Cup skating competition Saturday night and promptly had a new tulip named after her.

The organisers of the amateur competition had promised that the winner of the women's championship would give her name to a new strain of tulip. A bouquet of the flowers was presented to the winner by the Netherland's Queen Juliana.

Biellmann led the 23 entrants from 12 countries after the short program and maintained her advantage in the concluding free-skating section, finishing with 141.98 points.

Natalia Strelkova of the Soviet Union placed fourth and Peggy McLean of Calgary was eighth.

In the pairs competition, Irina Vorobieva and Igor Lesovsky placed first with 135.14 points. The American couple of Sheryl Franks and Michael Botticelli was second with 133.34.

Chris Won't Rush Top-Berth Claim

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Chris Evert isn't ready to reclaim the No. 1 spot in the world of women's tennis despite her convincing 6-3, 6-3 victory Saturday over Martina Navratilova in the title match of the $250,000 Series Championship.

"I think Martina was No. 1 the first half of the year, and I was No. 1 the second half," Evert said. "We'll have to see what happens."

Evert had said repeatedly during the richest-ever women's tennis tournament that if she won the championship, she thought she deserved to reclaim the top ranking she held for four years, until her loss to Navratilova in the finals at Wimbledon last July.

"I thought I played well," said the 23-year-old Evert, who collected a $75,000 first prize and a new automobile. "I thought I played very well."

Competing in the singles were the top eight point-scorers in a 28-event schedule during the last year.

Evert now has a 22-6 lifetime record against the powerful left-hander in tournament play, but each player has won twice against the other this year.

Bird Bobble Aids Gaels

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Hirose didn't respond to a signal from the University of British Columbia bench and Queen's Golden Gaels turned his error into a major score en route to a 16-3 College Bowl football victory over the Thunderbirds Saturday.

Hirose, running back punts for the first time this season, failed to notice a signal to concede a single point on a Tim Wardrop punt late in the fourth quarter.

He tried to run it out and was hit by several Queen's tacklers. The ball popped loose and Paul Langevin recovered to set the stage for Thunderbirds' downfall, a four-yard run by Dave Marinucci on the following play for the only touchdown of the national final.

"The ball was fumbled where there should have been a point conceded," UBC head coach Frank Smith lamented later, noting the single point would have left his team trailing only 7-3 with 3½ minutes still to play.

The game was scoreless after the first quarter. The teams exchanged field goals in the second quarter and Queen's held a slim 6-3 margin going into the final 15 minutes.

Blaine Shore, whose two field goals had staked the winners to their lead, converted the major score and later set a College Bowl mark with his third three-pointer of the game.

Gary Metz put the only Thunderbirds points up, a second-quarter field goal from 36 yards that evened the score at 3-3. Shore's field goals covered 31, 11 and 25 yards.

Hirose, a 20-year-old sophomore, had earlier been responsible for Queen's quarterback Jim Rutka altering his game plan after picking off two passes to jolt the Gaels while clubmate Mark Beecraft snared another.

The Queen's quarterback went almost solely with the running game following his early misfortunes. He threw the ball just seven times in the second half and 18 times in the game, completing five. The Gaels moved the ball 179 yards on the ground compared with 39 in the air.

UBC quarterback Danny Smith, on the other hand, had no solution to the Queen's defence that outweighed his team-mates by 25 pounds a man along the line.

Led by middle linebacker Ed Andrew, voted the game's outstanding player, Queen's sacked Smith three times for a total of 25 yards.

UBC managed a net rushing total of 73 yards, but the harassed Smith stood in the pocket to set two championship game marks—most passes (35) and most completions (18).

Lions Go for Sugar; End Bowl Suspense

By Associated Press

Top-ranked Penn State has ended the collegiate football suspense, accepting a bid to the Sugar Bowl to face the Southeastern Conference champion.

The Nittany Lions, idle Saturday, announced their decision shortly after Orange Bowl-bound Nebraska, the No. 2 team in United States college football, was upset by Missouri 35-31.

Eighth-ranked Georgia, meanwhile, threw the SEC race in a tangle by [illegible] burn 22-22. The deadlock was accomplished on a one-yard touchdown plunge by Willie McClendon with 5:18 left to play and an extra point placement by Rex Robinson as Bulldog coach Vince Dooley disdained a two-point conversion attempt which might have meant victory.

The tie leaves the SEC title undecided until Dec. 2 when Auburn, which got 250 yards and two touchdowns from Joe Cribbs, plays No. 3 Alabama, which was idle Saturday. If Alabama wins that game, the Crimson Tide draws the Sugar Bowl bid. If Auburn wins, Georgia gets the conference title and the Sugar Bowl invitation.

Nebraska, hoping for a national championship showdown against Penn State, lost that chance when Missouri's James Wilder scored four touchdowns, the last one out with 3:42 remaining in the game.

The Cornhusker loss came despite a school record 255 yards and two touchdowns by Rick Berns, who became the school's all-time rushing leader.

Unranked Missouri's payoff for that upset will be a trip to the Liberty Bowl to face No. 17 Louisiana State, which lost to Mississippi State 16-14.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma, which lost to Nebraska 17-14 last week and dropped to No. 4, walloped Oklahoma State 62-7 as Billy Sims exploded for 209 yards and four touchdowns. Then the Sooners accepted an invitation to the Orange Bowl for a rematch with Nebraska.

Sims pushed his season rushing yardage to 1,762 yards, breaking the Big Eight single-season rushing record of 1,680 yards set last year by Oklahoma State's Terry Miller.

Southern California will be the host team in the Rose Bowl after defeating UCLA 17-10 Saturday to clinch the Pacific-10 championship. Charles White ran for 145 yards, pushing his career total to 3,739, breaking the USC school record of 3,724 held by Anthony Davis.

The No. 5 Trojans won't know whom they play in the Pasadena game until next Saturday when Michigan and Ohio State meet for the Big Ten championship.

Purdue, ranked 15th and [illegible]ing for its first Big Ten title since 1929, let the conference lead slip away Saturday, dropping a 24-6 decision to No. 7 Michigan as Rick Leach hurled two touchdown passes and Russell Davis rushed for 127 yards.

That left the race in a three-way tie and, with Michigan State eliminated by its probation status, the trip to Pasadena will be decided in next week's game between the Wolverines and OSU. The No. 19 Buckeyes topped stubborn Indiana 21-18 Saturday on second-half touchdown runs by Art Schlichter and Ricky Johnson.

The loss to Michigan left Purdue at 7-2-1 and its consolation will be a trip to the Peach Bowl.

The Ohio State-Michigan loser will go to the Gator Bowl against No. 12 Clemson, which clinched its first Atlantic Coast Conference championship since 1967 with a 28-24 victory over No. 11 Maryland.

Maryland heads for the Sun Bowl against No. 9 Texas, which walloped Texas Christian 41-0. Johnnie Johnson picked off two passes, returning one 47 yards for a touchdown to spark the Longhorns.

Notre Dame, ranked No. 10, will return to the Cotton Bowl, where the Irish won the national championship a year ago. The bid came after Notre Dame's 38-21 victory over No. 20 Georgia Tech as Vegas Ferguson set a school record by rushing for 255 yards.

The Irish will play Houston, provided the Cougars, idle Saturday, win one of their last two games.

Rooms Need Focal Point

A gathering of people implies congeniality, a sharing of experiences, especially when that gathering takes place in one's home.

Instinctively one arranges furniture with a gathering, or a conversation group in mind, and that works out naturally around a focal point. Most often a fireplace provides this centre of interest, but when a room has none, a large furniture piece serves the purpose admirably.

Not only is the piece massive, larg enough to fill almost the entire wall, but it is a handsome furniture piece, with plenty of space for all of the component parts and additional concealed storage behind doors. Open shelves add depth, which relieves the flat, even facade and makes for greater interest.

The bulk of the piece could be [illegible] if it were indeed a free-standing cabinet; but because it recedes into the wall, the front level with the adjacent walls, the size is minimized.

Fine wood veneer can be chosen for the front, but particle board and plywood suffice for the frame and interiors. Although this cabinet is largely in traditional design, evidenced by the carved doors, any style, from contemporary to provincial would be just as successful in appearance, and accomplished by changing the style of the doors.

BLACK, RED, WHITE TO OPEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Assatly used black, red and white as his opening theme for spring-summer 1979 fashions, featuring a good looking group of blazers, Bermuda shorts, knife pleated skirts, and suits and pants with short cropped jackets.

White georgette sailor middys and matte jersey bodysuits are worn under blazers and skirts. Patent leather belts cinch the waists. Orange linen blazers look fresh and so does a good looking raglan sleeved, navy belted jacket over a white crepe skirt.

The slim suit skirts are slit high on the sides or in the front. Tan gabardine and brown glen plaid skirts had charming little georgette tops, short sleeved and spare, either in surplice wraps with V necks, crew necks, or tank tops.

The colors are bright — red, purple, peach, turquoise. There are prints, too, from dalmatian patterned georgettes to polka dotted chiffons. Ruffles are everywhere.

Matte jersey dresses in black, apple green and fuschia are sashed in contrasting color. White georgette is used for a middy dress trimmed in white satiin ribbon, for pleated bodices, and for shirts with tuxedo fronts.

Assatly is another designer to hit the glamor trail for evening. He filled the runway with georgette in combinations of orange, fuschia, turquoise, marigold and red. The dresses are long and crystal pleated, the styles ubiquitous standards — strapless, slip topped, hemmed with handkerchief points, and one shouldered.

Blassport showed an upbeat and trendy group of sport and dressy clothes.

The jackets are shorter and cummerbunds that button in back cinch the waists of pants, skirts and shorts. Pedal pushers also are cinched with cummerbunds. Big poplin shirt jackets with full backs are belted.

Gay dresses in red and white gabardine and cotton poplin had shirt jackets that closed with one button at the neck or crisp white shirts with wing collars that sported big bows at the neck. Navy and taupe and white combinations are the newsiest.

Standouts are a group of two piece silks in bright neon colors, two and three at a time.

'Detection Bias' Reported In Cases of Uterine Cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — The risk of cancer of the uterus to women who use the female hormone estrogen is exaggerated, two Yale University doctors report.

Estrogen, taken either by injection or pill form, is often used to alleviate symptoms of menopause in middle-age women.

The doctors, Ralph I. Horowitz and Alvan R. Feinstein, said in an article in the New England Journal of Medicine they operated on the theory that women who use estrogen often start bleeding, which prompts them to visit their doctors.

The physicians order their patients to undergo a procedure known as D-and-C (dilation and curettage), which could reveal endometrial cancer. A D-and-C procedure involves scraping the walls of the uterus.

Horowitz and Feinstein say that some women may develop cancer before using estrogen, but only the ones who have bleeding go through with tests that reveal a tumor.

The article said the doctors first noticed what they called a "detection bias" when examining results from tests taken in the mid-1970s, which showed women who use estrogen take a great risk in getting cancer.

They compared those tests with experiments taken earlier on a much broader sample of patients.

"We've found a kind of diagnostic bias we call detection bias," said Feinstein. "A great many post-menopausal women have a (type of) cancer that would be undiscovered unless a specific diagnostic procedure were done."

"In women who do not take estrogen, no test is done and they can have cancer without anyone knowing about it.

There have been a number of studies done saying estrogen is the cause of the cancer. Those studies have exaggerated the risk."

Turn-Signal Horn Bugs This Driver

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: We recently bought a new 1978 Mercury Zephyr. It's a fine car, but one thing really bugs my family and me. The horn "button" is on the end of the turn-signal stalk. You have to push inward on the lever to sound the horn. We own three cars — a Chevy with the horn in the middle of the wheel, an Imperial with a "rim-blow" wheel, and now this Zephyr. It's easy to forget which car I'm in, and I find the Zephyr horn not only annoying but dangerous in emergencies. Is there any way to convert the horn to a normal centre-wheel button? — PEEVED

Dear Peeved: No easy way, although anything's possible. I agree with you — placement of horn buttons should be standardized. So should seat-belt releases and light switches. It's ironic that with all the government auto safety regs, no one's ever tackled these very basic items. People who rent cars are particularly vulnerable to this lack of standardization.

Dear Mike: My 1976 Corolla never seems to warm up. It takes 40 to 50 miles of hard driving to get the temperature gauge to move off the cold mark. The engine rarely reaches the 192 degrees needed to open the thermostat. Could cylinder wear be causing this problem? About a year ago, a gallon of raw gasoline leaked into the crankcase. The gasoline washed down the cylinder walls and probably caused quite a bit of wear. Is this why the engine never really warms up? — RUNNING COLD

Dear Running: I doubt it. A more logical explanation is that your temperature gauge isn't accurate. I'm sure your thermostat is opening normally, because if it weren't you'd be in a constant boil.

Dear Mike: I have a 1975 Chrysler Cordoba with 18,000 miles on it — mostly city driving. The darned car uses a quart of oil every 400 miles. The dealer's service department says this is normal and can't find anything wrong. I don't consider is normal. Do you? — BURNED

Dear Burned: Common, maybe. Normal? No. Often, though, a newish engine doesn't burn oil but rather leaks it out while running. Have your dealer put a tracer fluid that's ultraviolet-light sensitive into the crankcase to check for leaks. Also have him look into your vacuum and PCV systems to be sure they're not drawing oil into the intake manifold.

You're invited to send your automotive questions to Michael Lamm, Box 7607-B, Stockton, Calif. 95207. Not all questions can be answered personally. Those of broadest reader interest will appear in future columns.

CHILD'S PLAY for Kimby Zweifel, 8, of Orlando, Fla., but it certainly wasn't for her parents, John and Jan Zweifel, who created a hand-carved, 15-room miniature of the White House at a cost of $350,000. The project took 200,000 hours to complete. Here Kimby rearranges furniture in model-sized replica of the Red Room.

Take Stock Before Quitting

Leslie Holbrook

"If anyone in good health wonders if quitting a career earlier than necessary is advisable, I urge them to consider the pros and cons carefully — financially and in other ways — before taking the jump," says W. W., of Guelph, Ont.:

"While I am still 30 months shy of 65, I always read your column, finding it interesting and I'm sure it is helpful to many.

"I am writing about something which I think could save others from the situation I have had to contend with. Early in 1975, when economic conditions seemed quite good, I decided it was a good time to retire after 35 years.

"As I was under 60 at the time, I believed I could easily get good-paying and congenial work for several more years. It hasn't worked out that way.

"The recession came just as I moved to a new city with higher housing costs so I had to start a mortgage again. My few extra earnings plus a comparatively meager pension have made me want to kick myself for having retired over five years earlier than necessary.

"I should have stayed on and enjoyed the added benefits of feeling more useful than I now do as well as earning more, and also building up a more adequate pension based on the last and best-paying five years."

Another Guelph reader takes a somewhat different view. A. M. writes:

"Your columns are greatly appreciated by my wife and me. I would like you to use your influence to secure a regular pension for the 60-year-old spouse as well as for all those who would like to retire at the age of 60.

"It would mean that the younger generation would have more chance to get employment.

"I further suggest that persons over a certain amount of income should not receive Old Age Security but only those who qualify through a means test. That would eliminate the problems of where the money would come from for the 60-year-old pensioners."

In the Ottawa Journal, I share space on pages for seniors with Kit Irving, who writes a lively local column called Silver and Gold. Recently, opposite one of my pieces entitled "Elderly Activists Push Over-65 Rights," Kit's column was captioned "Speak Up, Elderly Asked."

"Everybody's studying us so let's tell them what we think!" Kit quotes Marjorie Mann, president of the Ottawa Senior Citizens Council.

Marjorie was reacting to an invitation to submit a brief to the special Senate committee on age retirement policies. The column reproduced the council's excellent questionnaire designed to provide hard data for such a brief.

Pertinent questions include: Do you think we should retire at 65? Have you worked since retirement? Would you like to be working (full time, part time)? What do you miss from your working days?

Interested clubs might ask for a copy of this questionnaire from Ottawa Senior Citizens Council, 71 Bank Street, Ottawa K1P 5N2.

City Folk Love Loveless Cafe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Wafting over rolling hills from a small, white-clapboard and stone eatery, the aroma of country cooking and promise of down-home hospitality beckon celebrity and commoner alike.

Often waiting more than an hour, 500 to 700 city folk flock to Charles McCabe's Loveless Cafe on Sundays for breakfast, lunch and dinner, served at a dozen tables on hardwood floors. A tractor and several cars in various stages of disrepair litter the backyard.

Its patrons include television's Hee Haw gang, Tennessee Ernie Ford, guitarist Chet Atkins, country music singers Ray Stevens, Charley Pride and Donna Fargo, pop star Jimmy Buffett and Captain Kangaroo.

Named after its owner of more than 30 years ago, the Loveless offers country ham, homemade preserves and all the homemade biscuits the customer desires as its claim to fame.

"If people want something, they're going to find it," Mrs. McCabe says. "I think they enjoy the drive out in the country and they like the friendly atmosphere and the smallness of it all.

"We're kind of a family out here — the employees, our customers and us. We don't feel like the boss."

"We've got so many good customers among the music people. They're all fun-loving and love our food," Mrs. McCabe says.

One Monday, usually the cafe's weekly day of respite, Mrs. McCabe was asked if the Loveless would reconsider just once.

"We opened that morning for Captain Kangaroo," she says. "He and his group were in town taping at Opryland and they wanted to come out for dinner."

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My name is Sandy and I became acquainted with your column while being paper-trained.

I can't read or write because I'm only three, and besides, I'm a mongrel dog. Someone bought me from the Humane Society for $12.72.

When you said, "I don't care WHERE I'm entertained, as long a dog doesn't come and sit on my lap," I was shocked!

I love people and want to help my family entertain guests, so I jump into their laps, look into their eyes and wag my tail. Almost everyone like me.

My friend Rover said we should run you out of the Canine Corps, but I stuck up for you and said you are a nice lady who does much good for many people.

Can't you find a spot in your heart for me, too? I love you.

HURT DOGGY

DEAR DOGGY: I love you, too. And please be assured that I do have a spot in my heart for you. But not on my lap. Especially when I'm all dressed up in a beige lace dress and your paws are all sticky from a freshly tarred driveway.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently received an invitation to the wedding of my cousin, who lives 500 miles from us.

There was no indication on the invitation that our children were not included. (Usually, when they don't want children they put "NO CHILDREN" on the invitation.)

Well, I went out and spent a small fortune outfitting my kids for the wedding — and then found out they weren't wanted!

Perhaps I should mention that they are not babies, and are pretty well-behaved.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Not necessarily. The invitation was addressed to you and your husband. Had they wanted your children, their names would have appeared on the invitation along with yours.

DEAR ABBY: I have many comments in mind when I read various letters in your column, but I must write about the newly coined word, "clergyperson" in lieu of "clergyman," — in order to avoid offending women.

I think the funniest feminist term I ever saw was in a college newspaper that referred to a freshman as "freshperson." — MARION F.

DEAR MARION: Thanks for another for my collection. I still think replacing "manhole" with "personhole" takes the prize.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29, college-educated, single by choice and considered a very attractive woman. My problem? I am a victim of discrimination.

Until I became a blonde a year ago, I never realized how much blondes were discriminated against. Especially good-looking blondes. If a woman happens to be blonde and good-looking, she is immediately labelled as dumb. And if she's blonde, good-looking and has a great figure, she is automatically written off as stupid.

Abby, I am the same person I was when I had brown hair, but people (women as well as men) react totally differently to me.

Please print this with some suggestions on how to cope with unfair stereotypes. — NO DUMB BLONDE

DEAR BLONDE: Intelligent people do not use labels or stereotypes. Neither do they discriminate against people because of the color of their hair, eyes or skin. Consider yourself lucky to be able to eliminate the bigots and boobs in a hurry.

DEAR ABBY: I am Wife No. 2. My husband's previous marriage ended in divorce seven years ago. (They had three children.)

My husband's ex-in-laws recently invited him (and me) to their 50th wedding anniversary party. He accepted even though he has not been part of their family for seven years.

Of course, his ex-wife and their children were at this party. When Wife No. 1 asked my husband if he would mind posing for some "family" pictures with her, their children and the grandparents, my husband agreed willingly, as though they were still one big happy family!

DEAR WIFE NO. 2: Yes. Even though your husband is no longer married to the mother of his children, perhaps the golden wedding couple (and conceivably your husband's children) would treasure a picture of the three generations (of which you are not a part).

'Yes, We're All Neurotics Here'

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — "Yes, we are all neurotics here. Welcome to Neurotics Anonymous," says the young, pretty woman who answers the door of an old, dilapidated house on Teocelo Street.

Inside, a small group listens attentively to a balding, 30ish, bespectacled man named Gonzalo as he tells of his battle to overcome an obsessive jealousy about his wife.

Then Hilda, the woman who answered the door, gets up to tell how she is overcoming an inferiority complex and how being divorced made her feel like a failure. She, too, is roundly applauded.

The group rises and recites a prayer: "God grant us the serenity to accept the things we cannot change, the courage to change the things we can and the wisdom to know the difference."

From a tiny group founded by three people in Mexico City in 1976 as an offshot of the U.S. Alcoholics Anonymous, Neurotics Anonymous has grown to 17 groups in the capital alone and others in Monterrey, Cuernavaca and Guadalajara.

"Here we get all kinds of people, from rich to poor, professionals to workers," explains Alberto, who said he helped found the group after suffering trauma caused by the death of a son.

"Neurosis has no respect for social class. But here inside we are all equal."

Both Gonzalo and Hilda say they tried psychiatric help first to overcome severe depression and neurosis but it didn't help.

"When I was 17, a psychiatrist told my family, 'Leave the boy alone. There is no hope for him,'" says Gonzalo. "My twin brother was always the classic extrovert; I was the classic introvert.

"I became addicted to alcohol and marijuana. I couldn't go on living like that and psychiatric treatment didn't work for me because I saw the psychiatrist as a symbol of authority. One day a friend told me about Neurotics Anonymous. It is helping me to change."

N-Tests Leave Legacy of Cancer

CEDAR CITY, Utah (AP) — Folks here used to get up early to watch the brilliant pre-dawn flashes and enormous mushroom clouds 160 kilometres away. Twenty years later, Blaine Johnson counts 11 people dead of cancer within 200 metres of his house.

Two neighbors have leukemia now, just like five of the 11 who died in the last 10 years in this communityof 8,500 between Salt Lake City and Las Vegas. Just like Johnson's daughter, who died of leukemia in 1965, three years after the United States stopped above-ground nuclear testing at a barren site upwind and across the state line in Nevada.

The American Cancer Society said the U.S. national annual leukemia death rate is six per 100,000.

"Everyone thought it was the neatest thing to watch the blast just before dawn, watch the cloud form and then drift by," said John Rogers of nearby St. George. His mother died of cancer in 1956.

"We actually believed that the federal government would not involve itself in anything that would jeopardize the public health," said fellow townsman Ronald Garner, whose daughter died of cancer in 1966.

An informal telephone survey in three small southwest Utah towns — Parowan, Paragonah, and Summit, combined population less than 2,000 — turned up 157 cancer deaths, survivors said last week.

"They became, in effect, civilian soldier-victims of the cold war," said lawyer McArthur Wright, who represents surviving families in a legal fight for damages.

They seek damages of $1 million for each of nine deaths.

REBELS ROUTED

MANAGUA (Reuter) — The Nicaraguan National Guard claims to have repulsed an attack by a guerrilla force that included Cubans and Panamanians which crossed the border from Costa Rica.

A military spokesman said there were dead and wounded on both sides.

He said Panamanians and Cubans were among the Sandinist insurgents who were driven back across the border.

The uprising was crushed by the National Guard. About 3,000 people were reported killed in the fighting.

Vance Denies U.S. Interfering in Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance, responding to warnings by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, said Sunday the United States intends to continue supporting the shah of Iran's efforts to restore peace in the Middle Eastern country.

Vance, in a formal statement, denied that the U.S. role amounted to an attempt to intervene militarily in Iranian politics.

"As President Carter has indicated, the United States does not intend to interfere in the internal affairs of any other country," he said. "Reports to the countrary are totally without foundation."

Vance was responding to comments Brezhnev made that the Soviet Union would regard any U.S. military intervention in Iran as "a matter affecting the security interests of the Soviet Union." Iran borders the Soviet Union.

Vance said while the United States maintains a hands-off policy militarily in Iran, it expects "other countries to conduct themselves in similar fashion." Vance noted that the Soviet Union has made that pledge.

"We firmly support (Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi) in his efforts to restore domestic tranquility in Iran and have confidence that Iran can solve its own problems," Vance said. "We intend to preserve and pursue with Iran our strong bilateral political, economic and security relationship."

Shah's Cleanup Strikes Too Close to Home?

By JONATHAN RANDAL
Washington Post

AN ANALYSIS

TEHRAN — Iranians have become so cynical about their national "tradition" of corruption that only public executions for the guilty seem likely to persuade them that Shan Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is serious about his promised crackdowns on wrongdoers.

Fighting for his political life at the price of sacrificing some of those who were once his closest associates, the shah has yet to pass the litmus test of actually having those presumed guilty tried, much less punished.

Indeed, public skepticism is so great here that many Iranians automatically assume former top officials, such as former prime minister Amir Abbas Hoveyda and former secret police chief Nematollah Nassiri are actually in protective custody as a guard against mob justice.

Flushed by billions of dollars worth from oil revenues and other developments projects, corruption has become so universal, ordinary Iranians complain, that the corner grocer jacks up prices, buys off government inspectors and passes the added costs on to the customers.

A foreign banker said the growing blatancy of corruption was on a mammoth scale. "In one deal I know of," he said, "eight people received bribes involving sums which I would not make for several years."

As a result corruption has become the target for the torrent of demonstrations against the shah. As an indication of the growing public pressure, two investigative bodies were set up during the past 10 days.

They bring the total to at least four separate agencies that have been established to delve into alleged wrongdoing by civil servants, wheelers and dealers, the royal family and the Pahlavi Foundation, an investment fund that controls a portion of the shah's riches for the benefit of the poor.

Notably absent from Iran during the recent turmoil and subsequent investigations are such key figures as practically the entire royal family, except for the shah and his wife and their children, oil boss Hushang Ansary and dozens of inner-circle businessmen and associates accused of financial irregularities.

Public cynicism is based on the deeply embedded notion that the shah has used corruption as a system of government to buy loyalty, and that the Pahlavi Foundation long has served as a tax-free slush fund for the royal family rather than for charity as it is advertised.

Former prime minister Ali Amini, who counselled the shah to move forcefully against corruption, has argued that "no one believes him anymore — we must make people believe by cracking down hard."

Yet, so many of the heads the public is demanding have links straight to the shah that Iranians wonder whether he can afford to let his former friends defend themselves in a public court.

Mindful that the shah often has promised punishment of the corrupt during his 37-year reign, a longtime foreign resident remarked, "This time the old whitewash won't work.

"The only way to avoid embarrassment is to try them behind closed doors in the morning, then shoot them in public in the afternoon.

Soon after appointing the military government two weeks ago, the shah pledged in a television address "not to repeat the past mistakes and illegalities, the cruelty and corruption."

That unprecedented admission was aimed at disarming Iranians' anger at the dissipation of its oil income bonanza and its legacy of high rents, impossible Tehran traffic and torture which are lumped together in peoples' minds as corruption.

Now that perhaps 18 former ministers and perhaps the same number of civil servants and businessmen are in custody, the government must find a way to formulate charges against them without implicating the shah.

Consider the problem involved with Hoveyda, the shah's affable prime minister from 1965 to 1977 who, whatever his other failings, is not generally thought to have filled his own pockets.

Hoveyda, instead, symbolizes the extravagances of a regime considered mired in corruption and mismanagement, which wasted tens and tens of billions of dollars in its headlong rush to meet the shah's promise of making Iran the world's fifth economic power by the year 2000.

Moreover, public doubts about the zeal of outgoing Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emami were based on his longtime duties as custodian of the Pahlavi Foundation, once described as "the most powerful economic force in the country" after the government itself.

Spanish PM Kidnapping Coup Fails; Juan Carlos Safe Abroad

MADRID (Reuter) — The Spanish government is in full control of the armed forces after foiling an officers' plot to arrest Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez and force a change of government, informed sources said Sunday.

The sources said the plot, nicknamed "Operation Galaxy," was discovered by military intelligence last Thursday and quickly neutralized.

At least two officers — a lieutenant-colonel of the paramilitary civil guard and a police captain — were arrested.

The sources denied a press report which said the conspirators planned to kidnap King Juan Carlos before he left Spain last Friday for visits to three Latin American countries.

S.A. Going Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — South African Prime Minister Pieter Botha said Sunday elections will be held as scheduled next month in Namibia, also known as South-West Africa, despite black guerrillas who are opposed to them.

"We have no idea of cancelling it, we are going to proceed with it," Botha said in an interview on the NBC Meet the Press program, taped in Pretoria, South Africa, and aired here Sunday.

South Africa controls the territory under a League of Nations mandate that has been voided by the United Nations.

The UN Security Council demanded last week that South Africa call off the December election in Namibia and hold one next spring under UN supervision. The demand was backed by a threat of sanctions against South Africa.

Veterinarians Cleared In Tomcat Death Case

SEATTLE (AP) — Jurors who listened to seven days of details about the life and death of Sasha, a tomcat, deliberated less than two hours before deciding two city veterinarians were not negligent in the cat's death.

The King County Superior Court jury also awarded the two veterinarians $171 in a counterclaim for their services.

The cat's owners, Dr. Jan Spiegel and his mother Louise Spiegel, originally asked for $30,000 in damages from Dr. William H. Sudduth and Dr. Donald S. Kent, but a judge ruled in May that it was up to the jury to determine any damages.

The plaintiffs contended that the two veterinarians were negligent in their treatment of Sasha. They said the men were not aware of abscesses in the cat's throat, which hampered its breathing, because they never checked the throat.

The defence contended that the cat suffered from feline asthma, and that its problems may have been intensified after inhaling smoke when Mrs. Spiegel's mattress caught fire several weeks before the cat died May 14, 1977.

Dr. John T. Boyce, a veterinary pathologist, testified that there were also indications that Sasha suffered from feline leukemia, an incurable viral infection.

FLOWER GENES BANKED FOR POSTERITY

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — About 200 higher plant species become extinct each year and a University of California scientist has created a flower "gene bank" in an attempt to save some of the endangered plants.

"People know animals such as condors and whales are in danger of becoming extinct," Dr. Harold Koopowitz said. "It's very easy to emphathize with animals.

"The problem is much more severe with plants but it's not as easy to care about plants."

Koopowitz, an associate professor of biological sciences and director of the Arboretum at University of California, Irvine, said between 10 and 20 per cent of all higher plant species are endangered.

Gene banks have been developed for some agricultural crops, he said, but he believes he has the only gene bank for flowers. He said he created the floral gene bank not only in an attempt to save certain species but also to promote new varieties of cultivated flowers.

"The gene bank is a coupling of art and science," he said. "We use scientific techniques to create the gene bank but the end result, flowers, is aesthetic."

The gene bank contains frozen seeds and pollen which are retrieved later. The seeds are collected, dried and sealed in a vacuum and then placed in cold storage, below 18° C., where they will keep for hundreds, even thousands, of years.

Shame! Shame! Gandhi Greeting

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Jeers and boos from the governing Janata party benches greeted former prime minister Indira Gandhi today as she was sworn in as a member of India's lower house of Parliament (Lok Sabha).

Mrs. Gandhi seemed unperturbed as the legislators called her "murderer," "Hitler" and shouted "Shame! Shame!"

She returned home today after a week long controversial visit to Britain.

A large crowd cheered Mrs. Gandhi when she arrived at Parliament House, six hours after flying into the Indian capital from London by way of Moscow.

The former prime minister, 62 Sunday, was ousted from power 20 months ago after a period of emergency rule during which she jailed thousands of her political opponents.

She was returned to Parliament in a byelection in Chikmagalur, a coffee plantation town in southern India, in which she defeated the Janata candidate by 77,000 votes.

CITY WATCHDOG REPORT 84. Congratulations to all those organizations and people who helped prove that Vancouver Islanders need and want an Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway. Passenger service between downtown Victoria and Courtenay. Congratulations to the five Sargeants and 3 Constables of the Victoria City Police who received awards for 20 year service from Mayor Mike Young and also congratulations to Inspector Bentley, Sargeant Horsman and Constable Anthony for receiving 25 year service awards. Your City's Watchdog saw City Police Car #3 Licence number LWN 402 travelling West the other evening in Saanich. Unless the City has some agreement with the Saanich Municipality to patrol certain areas of Saanich lets hope City Police cars can remain inside the City Limits for Patrol duties. Your City's Watchdog wishes for a good attendance at the next City Council meeting to be held in the Activity Room, James Bay Community Centre 140 Oswego Street on Thursday, November 23, 1978 at 7:30 p.m. where the Public Hearings will also be held regarding the downzoning of James Bay Properties. For further information regarding City matters please phone 383-6259 Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards. Postscripts; Karla It was a pleasure meeting you at the Red Lion Inn. John Cooper, Many thanks for your successful efforts in helping save the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Passenger Service.

HOW TO WRITE

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Human Torch Deaths Sweep U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Nine persons have died in a wave of macabre "human torch" suicides in Britain in the last seven weeks and baffled British psychiatrists say the only link seems to be a desire to immitate other self-immolators.

The latest suicide attempt occurred when 26-year-old typist Valerie Donoghue of the English resort town of Brighton set herself ablaze with gasoline in her bathroom. She is reported in critical condition.

Police said the woman's screams were heard by neighbors, who broke down her door and put out the flames. Mrs. Donoghue, a divorcee, was described as a generally cheerful person who had been absent from her job for two weeks because of depression.

Why the victims choose to douse themselves in kerosene or some other flammable liquid and then deliberately set themselves on fire has stumped investigators, particularly when simpler and less painful means of suicide are available.

Newspaper and television reports have played up accounts of the screaming death throes of the burning victims, so that no potential victim would think that it is a quick and painless way to die.

One theory psychiatrists offer is that the victims were imitating the flaming suicide of Australian heiress Lynette Phillips, whose death in Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 2 was widely reported in Britain.

Reports from relatives, friends or neighbors indicate that most of the victims have suffered at one time from depression.

The suicides have included both men and women, young persons and middle-aged, the relatively well-off and the poor, and the deaths have been scattered throughout the country.

Two days before Mrs. Donoghue attempted suicide, the newspapers, radio and television gave wide coverage to the kerosene-fire suicide of farmer's wife Millie Appleton, 52. Her badly burned body was found in her garden in the English village of Arlington.

Last Wednesday two human torch suicides occurred in the English Midlands. Police said the body of a woman in her 40s was found badly burned in the grounds of Coombe Abbey Park on the outskirts of Coventry.

Authorities said she had apparently doused herself in a flammable liquid and set herself alight alongside a driveway leading into the park, a popular tourist spot. A caretaker heard her screams and tried to douse the flames but was unable to save her.

Wednesday's second human-torch suicide occurred in Worcester. The badly burned body of 20-year-old Italian-born railway porter Umberto di Muro was found in his bedroom at his parents' home.

On Nov. 12, a 42-year-old mother of six burned herself to death on Hearsall Common, an area of open heathland in Coventry.

On Oct. 25 horrified witnesses saw West Indian immigrant Patrick Lawrence sit down on a park bench in the Midlands city of Birmingham, calmly soak himself in kerosene and strike a match.

Militants Hijack Loaded Ferry

ISTANBUL (AP) — Armed youths hijacked a Europe-to-Asia ferry boat today and ordered the captain to cruise in the Bosporus Straits until Turkish authorities listen to their demands, police sources reported.

The sources said there are an estimated 750 commuters on board the ferry boat that serves between Karakoy, a busy sector on the European side, and Kadikoy, on the Asian side of Istanbul.

They said the ship was occupied by militants of an extreme political organization after authorities refused to give them permission to attend a funeral ceremony for a slain youth.

However, there was no immediate indication to which extremist band the hijackers belong.

Riot police and paramilitary troops, meanwhile, threw security rings around major landing stations along the Bosporus in the event the gunmen attempt to disembark, sources said.

Military patrol launches attempted to approach the boat but were advised by the hijackers via the ship's radio to keep clear.

The group want to talk personally to Istanbul Gov. Ihsan Tekin or the chief of security to relay undetermined demands, the sources said.

Eskimo Whalers Sue To Stop Oil Drilling

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Eskimo whalers have filed suit to stop oil drilling in the Beaufort Sea, considered by some the most promising offshore oil area in the United States but also the habitat of the endangered bowhead whale.

The whalers fear oil spills under the ice could wipe out the bowhead, one of the Eskimos' major food sources.

The International Whaling Commission, concerned that the whale is nearing extinction, this year imposed the first-ever quota on the Eskimo hunt of the bowhead.

The drilling going on now is being conducted by Exxon Corp. on a man-made gravel pad in the mouth of the Sagavanirktok River, 320 kilometres east of Barrow.

Thomas Brower, a 73-year-old whaling captain, said: "Noise and pollution from the drilling site threaten the Inupiat (Eskimos) with more trouble in hunting whales and fish. . . . If there were a major blowout, we could be faced with the end of our marine hunting."

The Eskimos are suing the state, the federal government and Exxon on grounds the drilling began without the required environmental impact statements and water quality certification.

Donald Clocksin, a lawyer representing the hunters of the villages of Barrow, Nuiqsut and Kaktovik, said the move is the "opening shot in a major battle" against an outer continental shelf oil lease sale tentatively scheduled by the state and federal government for December, 1979.

The sale involves 500,000 acres of primarily offshore lands in what the industry considers to be the most promising area in the U.S. for oil and gas exploration. Geologists have said the amount of oil in the Beaufort Sea could equal or surpass Prudhoe Bay, currently producing 1.2 million barrels a day.

Crandall Jones, manager of Exxon USA's Pacific Exploration Division said: "There is no evidence or indication that our operations are harmful to any endangered species.

ETHIOPIANS SIGN PACT IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Ethiopia and the Soviet Union signed a treaty of friendship and co-operation today. The Kremlin and the Red Sea state have been closely allied for the last two years.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said the document was signed at a Kremlin ceremony by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev and Ethiopian head of state Mengistu Haile Mariam.

The Ethiopian leader arrived in the Soviet Union last week for his third visit and has been holding talks with Brezhnev and other leaders.

The treaty, which follows a declaration of friendship between the two countries, sets the seal on the Kremlin's alliance with Ethiopia's Marxist military government.

The Soviet Union and Somalia were bound by a similar treaty until early last year.

Bribes Bring Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. federal judge today fined Westinghouse Electric Corp. a maximum of $300,000 for overseas payoffs after the Justice Department identified the bribe recipient as former Egyptian deputy prime minister Ahmed Sultan Ismail.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker had rejected a plea-bargaining agreement last month because the government refused to identify the country involved or the foreign official bribed.

Parker objected to the secrecy and the fact that the plea-bargaining had resulted in agreement on a precise fine.

Parker accepted a government proposal that it withhold any prosecution of Westinghouse employees involved in funneling $323,900 in bribes to the Egytian minister in 1975 for awarding the firm a $30 million contract for a fourth power station it has constructed in Egypt.

The Justice Department said another Egyptian official, Maher Anabtwi, acted as a go-between but did not receive any of the bribe money.

World's Growth Rate Declining Faster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population growth rate declined in the last decade and experts now predict the population will stabilize earlier than they expected.

This is the first time in history that the growth rate declined, experts say.

A new U.S. Census Bureau report on world population, released Sunday, shows the growth rate declined to 1.9 per cent in 1976 from 2.0 per cent in 1966.

At the same time, the world's estimated population increased to 4.3 billion in 1977 from 3.5 billion in 1967, the report says.

A zero population growth rate will be reached between the years 2020 and 2025, experts say, instead of a decade later, as had been anticipated.

Samuel Baum, the bureau's top expert on international demography, said the changes are small but significant.

"These things change slowly," he said in an interview. "Until the last 10 years, the growth rate had been going steadily up, and it had been predicted to continue going up through the 1970s and 1980s."

Population growth rates have declined in specific areas throughout history, particularly during wartime or in a natural disaster or disease epidemic. But experts say the new figures show the growth rate has declined in almost all areas of the world.

"We do not expect a reversal," Baum said.

A spokesman for the United Nations Fund for Population Activities, Tarzie Vittachi, said of the new data: "This is the first time since Adam that there has been an over-all across-the-board decline."

But Rodney Shaw, president of the Population Institute in Washington, said that while the new figures are encouraging, the population is still increasing at an alarming rate.

"There is the same kind of joy in this as in hearing that a 90-foot tidal wave rolling onto a crowded beach had dropped to 85 feet," he said. "It still means disaster unless there is a faster decline than now exists."

Experts say the birth rates in less developed countries have been declining since 1950, but the death rates have been declining faster. The net result was an increase in population. But since the late 1960s, the birth rates have been declining faster than the death rates, so the growth rates have dropped.

Demographers say that, as of 1975, women were having an average 4.3 births each, compared with 4.5 a decade earlier.

A zero population growth rate will occur when the world birth rate and death rate are equal.

Yes, Virginia . . . Time to Plant Beans and Peas

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Yes, Virginia, it is possible and indeed advisable to sow seeds of broad beans, and early green peas.

Now!

In November!!

They will be slow in growing but really romp away in our usual April weather to give us succulent, fresh vegetables in early June.

I know this idea seems preposterous to newcomers when first hearing it. But gardeners who have weathered the local seasons for 20, 30 and 40 years know that the percentage of success from this late sowing is worth the effort involved.

Third generation Victorians like you, Virginia, will take no heed of those who scorn the idea as "crazy." You will most likely be enjoying those delicate, green broad beans while the disbelievers and the newcomers are still wondering what happened to their late April sowings in a cold, wet soil.

I would have preferred to get the broad bean and pea seeds into the ground before this cold spell.

As it was overlooked until you reminded me, Virginia, it has been a project of the past weekend to find the most suitable spot in the garden that is still vacant.

To be successful, the piece of ground need not be large. A three-by-four-foot plot is large enough in winter sunshine, if backed on the north and east by a wind shelter. If no shelter exists — such as a fence, shrub or house wall — contrive a shelter of scrap wood to keep cold, winter wind from searing that little patch of seeded soil.

The soil needs to have plentiful humus to keep it free from compacting in wet weather, so choose either a slope or a piece of raised ground.

An artificially raised bed can be created by heaping half-decomposed material from the compost pile and covering this with the topsoil which was removed from the bed.

Even this few inches of height will give winter drainage to the seeds, enabling them to take advantage of the soil warming to make good root growth whenever mild spells occur.

No fertilizer goes in now, Virginia. There will be no sudden burst of growth until next spring, for it would probably be lost to the one very cold spell we have to expect in even our normal winters.

The only covering the average local gardener gives these late vegetable sowings is branches of either twiggy tree growth or of light conifer boughs. These can be thrust into the soil to form an open canopy or laid criss-cross on top to lessen penetration of frost. Snow covering will do no harm to either broad bean or early pea seeds or to their slow growth.

An early dwarf variety of green pea is stressed because of its superior hardiness and ability to make flowers and pods in the cool days of spring. Choose also a dwarf variety of broad bean, for its lesser height means earlier pods.

So, Virginia, although it is later than I prefer for sowing these seeds, you can tell your disbelieving friends to remember to sow next year in early November.

The idea is not as "crazy" as it seems. Although taking a chance with our unpredictable weather, it has been proven successful by three generations of Victoria gardeners.

Smuggling, Snuggling By Prisoners Reported

CALGARY (CP) — Federal prisoners smoked marijuana, committed thefts and smuggled women into their bedrooms while serving sentences last fall at a city community correctional centre designed to teach them work habits, according to The Herald.

The newspaper states several former prisoners at Scarboro Centre say they often ran rings around counsellors and security guards at the old two-storey house, which was vacated last spring.

Scarboro Centre, currently housed in a modern apartment building, is one of three institutions in the city where prisoners are allowed to work or attend school during the day while completing the last four to six months of their sentence.

Although counsellors suspended residents caught breaking house regulations — including one prisoner who was convicted for auto theft — the men say pot smoking, drinking, television thefts and women climbing up the back fire escape often went unnoticed.

One security guard, then 77, says he chased women out of the prisoners' bedrooms on three occasions "and I don't think they were the same girls, either . . ."

Corrections officials admit security was inadequate at the old house but say steps were taken to clamp down on prisoners.

PNE Requests $40M Grant For Multiplex

VANCOUVER (CP) — Erwin Swangard, president of the Pacific National Exhibition, has asked the federal government for a $40 million grant to help in construction of a proposed $163 million Multiplex stadium for the city.

Swangard also suggested to a meeting of the British Columbia Liberal that the federal government provide $20 million a year for three years towards the cost of the facility, which would seat 60,000 people.

House Starts Decline Forecast

HONOLULU (CP) — Canada's housing production will be sliced in half within a few years, Dr. Michael Walker, director of the Fraser Institute of Vancouver, said here Sunday.

Canadians have been "living through a phenomenon" characterized by big wage gains, Walker said.

He added that changing social attitudes and acquisitions of homes at an early age is not likely to be repeated in the 1980s and '90s.

The house building boom of the 1970s also has been fuelled by children leaving home at a younger age and setting up their homes.

Walker predicted a "re-emergence of more traditional social attitudes" in the years ahead, reducing the need for a high level of housing starts.

He added, however, that he expects a rising demand for recreational housing and retirement homes in the 1980s and 1990s, accompanying earlier retirement ages and high, principal-home equity among the middle-aged group.

"There will be a wholesale shift toward smaller dwellings with a high level of built-in convenience," he said.

He said a change in Canada's immigration policy might invalidate his predictions.

'I'll Never Forget That Sight'

Here is the first-person account of San Francisco Chronicle reporter RON JAVERS, wounded Saturday in the gunfire that killed Representative Leo Ryan and four others on a remote airstrip in Guyana. Javers, en route to Washington for medical attention, dictated the story to his city desk.

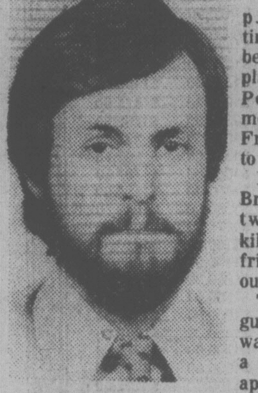
SAN JUAN (AP) — Jonestown is every evil thing that everybody thought — and worse.

We knew that before the shooting started.



JAVERS

The slaughter began at 4:20 p.m. Saturday (Guyana time) while we were standing beside the twin-engined airplane that had brought us to Port Kaituma, 11.2 kilometres outside Jonestown, on Friday and that had returned to pick us up.

I was waiting between Bob Brown and Don Harris, the two NBC men who were killed. We had become close friends during the course of our ordeal.

The firing erupted from guns close by. I was hit first. I was knocked to the ground by a slug in the left shoulder, apparently from a .38-calibre weapon.

Bob Brown stayed on his feet and kept filming what was happening, even as the attackers advanced on him with their guns.

He was incredibly tenacious.

While I was trying to decide whether to stay where I was or risk the 100-yard-dash across the close-cropped grass field to the jungle, I saw Brown go down.

I'll never forget that sight as long as I live.

I ran, and then I dived head-first into the brush.

I got up and scrambled as far into the swamp as I could. I was about 150 yards from the airstrip and up to my waist in water.

I couldn't see much. I had lost both pairs of glasses I had with me.

But there was silence. Apparently the party of attackers which must have included four, five or six men with guns, had fled.

I was far down the field by the time I returned to the airstrip.

Then, like the rest of the survivors, I returned to the crippled plane.

There were four Guyanese soldiers at the far end of the field.

They told us they had not been able to shoot at the attackers during the assault because they were afraid they would kill still more people.

The only policeman at the field, carrying a single-shell shotgun, had been disarmed the moment the men from the People's Temple began firing from their truck and trailer while we were getting ready to board the two planes: our own craft and the smaller one that was set to carry away the fugitives from Jonestown.

We took our most seriously wounded to the soldiers' tent and then we retired into Port Kaituma, the settlement next to the airstrip and went into a small cafe.

When we first reached Jonestown, on Friday night, the atmosphere was lively and cordial. We found ourselves getting a real Cook's Tour, with everything arranged for us. There was great rock music from the Jonestown band and entertainment during dinner.

And while we tried, mainly at first, to get away from the organized fun, we were told how happy everyone was.

But before we left for an evening's drive through deep mud to Port Kaituma, a young man slipped Don Harris of NBC a message written on a child's slate, saying: "Please help me get out of Jonestown."

It had four signatures.

Back in Port Kaituma, where the entire group of us spent Friday night in a tin-roofed disco — a small beer parlor with a phonograph and a few records — local Guyanese began telling us horror stories.

SURVIVOR REPORTS

400 Cultists Dead In Mass Suicide Rite

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — Attorney Mark Lane said today a band of American religious fanatics who massacred a California congressmen and four members of his party apparently used a tub of poison in a mass suicide ceremony that left 400 of them dead. Six hundred others were missing.

Lane told a news conference he counted 85 bursts of semi-automatic weapons fire when the Peoples Temple sect gathered at an open air auditorium of its commune at the Guyanese jungle town of Jonestown, presumably for a mass suicide rite.

The American lawyer said he had heard that the doctor and nurse of the commune carried a tub of poison to the auditorium prior to the mass suicide.

Lane said the Rev. Jim Jones, a former San Francisco city offficial who heads the religious comunity, had sent him and fellow attorney Charles Garry away from the scene.

"Jones had sent me (and Garry) away to the East House," said Lane. We could hear him speak of the dignity of death, the beauty of dying. Jones shouted 'mother, mother, mother, mother!' Then there was the first burst of shooting."

Lane said he and Garry fled into the bush near the commune settlement after the massacre Sunday night. He said they heard lots of gunfire and people screaming, including children, fleeing through the jungle.

The attorney told newsmen at an impromptu poolside hotel news conference that in a statement to Guyanese police he suggested that Jones may have escaped from the commune. The commune was known to possess a launch.

Earlier, Guyana Minister of Information Shirley Field-Ridley, who first reported the mass suicide, said Guyanese troops today captured the headquarters of the Peoples Temple in Jonestown and found that some of the victims apparently were murdered.

She said some 400 of the commune members had been found dead and authorities estimated 600 others were missiing.

The bizarre case blazed into violence late Saturday when an ambush by members of the sect at a jungle airport killed Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four other Americans when Ryan was leaving with 20 members of the sect after investigating reports that many Americans were being held against their will.

Killed with him were NBC television reporter Don Harris, 42; NBC cameraman Robert Brown, 36, both of Los Angeles, San Francisco Examiner photographer Gregory Robinson, 27, and Patricia Park, 18, an American settler.

Lane, who had accompanied the investigating party to the jungle commune said that after Ryan and his group left for the airport, he and Garry attempted to calm an atmosphere of panic that swept through the commune.

He recalled that months earlier Jones had been accused of suggesting a mass suicide. Just before the suicide ceremony, Lane said, he and Garry encountered two armed black members of the commune en route to the auditorium where others had assembled.

"They said to us with smiles on their face, 'We are all going to die.' They were relaxed and happy and I wondered if they were not doped."

Lane said he challenged the word 'we'. I said to the two armed men, 'at least Garry and I'll be able to tell the story.' They hugged us and said goodbye. We asked how to walk out of the place. 'Over the hill and through the brush and you'll find a road,' they said.".

Shortly after that they heard the shooting.

Lane said he and Garry spent most of Sunday cutting into strips some white boxer shorts he had in his overnight bag and using them to mark trails in various directions as they wandered through the area where they were lost.

After several hours they relocated the road. They proceeded down the road and were finally picked up by a Guyanese defence force

West Communities Firmly No on Unity

See election stories and tables on pages 7, 11 and 13.

A solid no-vote on incorporation in the Western Community, a somewhat confusing endorsment of industrial development in Saanich and a fourth-time-lucky approval of sewers in View Royal were three highlights of Saturday's municipal elections.

The emphatic rejection of municipal status surprised many who had been expecting it would be approved by Metchosin voters and at least narrowly defeated in Colwood-Langford and View Royal.

But the figures showed clearly that residents in the areas preferred the devil they know — in the form of the much-criticized Capital Region Board — to the uncertain future of incorporation.

The results of the three referendums: Colwood-Langford, yes 1,123; no 2,271. Metchosin, yes 288; no 476. View Royal, yes 281; no 696.

Some western-area politicians apparently feel the whole issue is now dead and buried, but others believe enforced incorporation at the dictates of the municipal affairs ministry is inevitable in the future.

Despite voting no to their own municipality, View Royal residents responded more than two to one in favor of a sewer referendum.

By only a slightly smaller margin, Saanich residents indicated they support the need for industrial development in the municipality.

But their replies to two other questions on the referendum ballot provided no helpful clues or consensus for elected officials who had been hoping that the result might lead them out of the morass of controversy.

Although residents rejected an industrial park developed under municipal land-banking in the Interurban area, and endorsed the Royal Oak site for industry, the vote margin was only a little over 1,000 in each case.

The Saanich municipal election saw pro-neighborhood aldermen Mary Casilio and John Mika re-elected, along with newcomer Irene Block and former veteran alderman Sandy Noel. Incumbent Ian Cass trailed in fifth place, more than 300 votes behind Noel.

Saturday was generally a successful day for incumbents in Greater Victoria, but a notable exception was the Greater Victoria school board election in which voters dumped trustees Peter Dorazio and Bud Smith in favor of newcomers Winfield Mott and Dr. Martin Levin.

The result gives a new slant to the board's philosophy, weakening the "fiscal responsibility" group and strengthening the element identified with emphasis on educational responsibility.

Esquimalt voters expressed satisfaction with the status quo in re-electing all three incumbents, while in Oak Bay incumbents Doug Watts and Shirley Dowell were voted back in office along with Norm Pimlott, a former eight-year council veteran.

In the North Saanich race for three council seats, incumbent Lawrence Fast was defeated by Owen Philp, a farmer who has already announced that he has his eyes fixed on the mayor's chair in 1979.

Winter . . .and With Vengeance

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

A savage gale gusting to 93 km/h lashed southern Vancouver Island over the weekend, knocking down trees, damaging homes and knocking out power lines.

The weather office said the wind will gradually die down, bringing very cold, dry weather until Wednesday — when snow is a strong possibility.

No injuries were reported on the weekend but there were scares aplenty.

— Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Rhodes of 1744 Jefferson fled their house Saturday night when a 40-foot pine tree came down on the roof.

— A tall tree was blown down at noon Sunday, just missing a four-man B.C. Hydro crew trying to repair storm damage.

— A tree caused minor damage to a house at 4407 Shelbourne.

— An apartment block, also at Sooke, was hit a glancing blow when a tree was blown down.

— Most areas of the Saanich Peninsula were without power or had flickering lights for at least part of the weekend with Sidney and Sooke being the hardest hit.

The storm began at 8 a.m. Saturday just as municipal voting began and reached its peak at 10

First Class Mail Rising to 17 Cents

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of first class mail will rise to 17 cents an ounce from the present 14 cents along with other postal rates next April 1, Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne announced today. Opposition MPs whistled when the minister made his announcement in the Commons and later strongly criticized the minister's running of the department.

MDs Back H-Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Medical Association voted during the weekend to support the provincial government's controversial heroin treatment program.

Answer Sought

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuter) — Malaysian authorities held urgent meetings today in a search for a face-saving way out of the diplomatic impasse posed by the 2,500 Vietnamese refugees stranded in Malaysian waters on board the freighter Hai Hong.

Convicts Riot

CHILLIWACK (CP) - Convicts at the Ford Mountain minimum security prison camp near this Fraser Valley community went on a weekend wrecking and burning spree.

Hospitals Struck

CALGARY (CP) — Non-medical hospital workers at six city health care institutions went on strike this morning to back contract demands for higher pay.

★SPORTS★

For the second successive year it will be Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes clashing in the Canadian Football League final for the Grey Cup next Sunday at Toronto and the Esks will be trying to avenge the 46-1 humiliation they suffered last year. Eskimos, utilizing what they called their "pride and poise" came from behind to defeat the Calgary Stampeders 26-13 Saturday in the Western final on a frozen Edmonton field. The Alouettes, losers of three out of four games to Ottawa this season, proved too tough defensively for the Rough Riders Sunday in posting a 21-16 Eastern victory. Page 16.

The prospects of again losing the services of high-scoring Geordie Robertson erased some of the sparkle from a winning Western Hockey League weekend for Victoria Cougars, who clipped Seattle Breakers 2-1 at home Saturday and scored a 3-2 victory Sunday in New Westminster. Page 16.

It also was a winning weekend for Victoria basketball teams. University of Victoria's Vikettes and Vikings both completed Canada West University Athletic Association sweeps over Saskatchewan's squads (Page 18) while DataTech clipped Gary Taylors twice in senior "A" men's competition at Vancouver. Page 16.

Begin Rejects Egypt Offer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin says he will recommend that his cabinet reject Egypt's demand for a timetable for solving the Palestinian problem but will ask it to reaffirm its willingness to sign a peace treaty with Egypt.

The cabinet adjourned its regular weekly meeting Sunday without taking a decision on the Egyptian demand. It was to reconvene Tuesday to continue discussions of the stalled Egyptian-Israeli negotiations in Washington.

The Sunday meeting came on the anniversary of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Jerusalem last year, which opened the way to the current negotiations. Palestinian guerrillas, who have been sharply critical of Sadat's solo peace drive, marked the date with a barrage of bombs aimed at Israeli targets.

One bomb exploded in a crowded bus travelling through the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, killing four persons and wounding 37. Canadians, Belgians, Swedes and Britons were among the casualties.

A second bomb injured two Israelis in the Tel Aviv suburb of Jaffa. A third, found at a busy Jerusalem intersection, was disarmed.

A FOUL DEAL ON TURKEYS

OTTAWA (CP) — A foul deed is being done with fowl in anticipation of Christmas, says Ken Crawford, chairman of the Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency.

Wholesalers, the middlemen who buy turkeys from farmers to sell to the supermarkets, are holding about 50 million pounds of the birds in cold storage to try to force up prices shoppers will pay for their Christmas turkeys, Crawford said in an interview.

He said turkey growers "want to make the public aware that there's plenty of turkey available for Christmas and there's no need to pay high prices."

Grocery stores are charging between $1.18 and $1.43 a pound for turkeys when the highest shoppers should pay is between $1.10 and $1.20 a pound, Crawford said.

The wholesalers are only paying farmers an average of 50 cents a pound for the turkeys. Yet they bill supermarkets between $1.04 a pound and $1.10 a pound and that for limited quantities.

I QUIT! WEEK 7

View Challenge as Spoiled Child

By DAVID COTTER

The mind is such a fascinating and subtle instrument, equally content to serve or to turn on its master.

I recall the pride I felt, the last time around, in meeting its old tricks. I remember drifting toward cigarette machines and unthinkingly jiggling the change in my pockets. I remember standing at parties and wanting to ask for a puff, to show off. I remember thinking that it was senseless to quit: my nerves were bad, I often felt tired, my temper was short, I'd gained a few pounds, I wasn't the life of the party. I remember feeling depressed because I wasn't seeing the money that I was supposed to be saving. I remember the killer, of course, the feeling that quitting just wasn't "me". I even remember feeling that smoking was my destiny and that it was wrong to stop.

I met them all and more the last time around, I even learned to regard them with a certain amount of affectionate humor. The main thing will always be this: remember to remember. Review your list and add to it the following facts:

- According to Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling, if you smoke 20 cigarettes a day and are 50 years old, you are equal in health to a 58-year-old non-smoker; 40 cigarettes, equal to 66 years, 60 cigarettes, 74 years of age.
- Put end to end, all the cigarettes consumed in one year in the U.S. and Canada would reach from New York to London over 11,680 times — more than 35 million miles.
- Vision declines noticeably for about 20 minutes after a cigarette has been smoked.
- Heavy smokers have a lower intake of nearly every vitamin, mineral and amino acid than non-smokers.

In the Book of Five Rings, a classic study of strategy, the Japanese samurai was advised how to treat the enemy. He was constantly to project the sense of superior rank and to strive for height. In fact, the bulk of this amazing little book is devoted to the attitudes and feelings a winner must develop.

Let's think along those lines. If you treat withdrawal as an heroic struggle, then you can bank on suffering heroically. If you treat the challenge as awesome, expect it to become so. But, if you treat it as a rather persistent and spoiled child whose crying goes on through the night, you've got the upper hand.

The crying may keep you up for a while but eventually the little blackmailer will realize that his iron lungs don't control you.
